President Makes Progress On Road to Recovery; Fear Over-Confidence

BULLETIN

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—By far the most optimistic bulletin that has emanated from President Harding's sick room, was issued at 9:50 a. m. by the staff of five attending physicians. They announced that the president had had a restful night and that his condition today showed marked improvement over yesterday. The pneumonic patches, which was the chief source of anxiety to the doctors, are much improved today.

"While recovery will inevitably take some time, the bulletin said, we are confident he will soon recover entirely from his illness.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—President Harding started in today on what Dr. Chas. E. Sawyer, his chief physician, termed "the long, difficult road to convalescence." The president is officially "out of the woods" in his battle against the combination of diseases which have kept him bedfast since Saturday, but the concern of the doctors is to maintain the ground gained during the last few days.

Conditions were such this morning as to make physicians hope that the chief executive would soon be on his feet again.

"The road to convalescence is a long, tedious one," said Dr. Sawyer. "We are likely to have our hands down, and anything is liable to happen."

Warning to Public

Dr. Sawyer said the public should be warned against accepting any rumors of recovery. He terms the progress to date as "very satisfactory" and "fortunate," and his caution today was against "over-confidence."

Every indication early this morning pointed to the president having made further progress on the road to recovery. He went to sleep shortly before midnight, and at 4 a. m. reports from the sick room on the eighth floor of the Palace hotel indicated he was still asleep. Dr. Sawyer retired at 1:30 a. m., leaving the night watch to Commander Joel T. Boone, naval medical officer of the White House.

From time to time Dr. Boone peeped into the president's room, but, seeing the chief executive getting the resful sleep of which he stands so badly in need, he

Floods in Colorado Halt Rail Traffic

PUEBLO, Colo., Aug. 2.—Bridges over both the Arkansas and Fountain rivers in this vicinity are out and trafic over the Denver & Rio Grande Western is blocked to the west, while waters in both streams continue to rise. However, there is no danger to Pueblo, according to observers who have been watching the streams closely the past 24 hours.

Several cloudbursts have damaged summer resorts in this locality and roads along Squirrel Creek have been washed out. Rye, a mountain resort, is cut off from Pueblo by a washout.

May Use Troops to Halt Mob Violence

OKLAHOMA, CITY, Okla., Aug. 2.—Governor J. C. Walton awaited official word today from Kingfisher County, where it was reported George Elder, farmer, had been severely whipped by a masked band.

If the reports are confirmed, the county may be placed under martial law, capital authorities said.

Governor Walton recently announced he would employ the national guard to stamp out mob violence, "if it took three years to do so."

REFUSES TO APPROVE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The interstate commerce commission today refused to approve the application of California sugar refiners for the establishment of lower freight rates between California cities and Chicago.

Fine Estates and Famous Hotels Seek President

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—Among the score or more offers of magnificent country estates and famous hotels in California as points at which President Harding may convalesce if he desires, are the country homes of William H. Crocker, Republican National Committeeman from California, and Charles W. Clarke at Burlingame, and the country estate of former United States Senator James D. Phelan at Saratoga.

William J. Wrigley, Jr., has offered Catalina Island and the famous Del Monte has placed itself at the president's disposal.

BOY CRUSHED TO DEATH IN FALL OFF TRAILER

Leonard Glenn, 8 Years of Age, Loses His Life in 'Stealing' Ride

Leonard Glenn, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Glenn of Sycamore Canyon road, was killed about 8 o'clock this morning when he fell from the tongue of a trailer upon which he was "stealing" a ride.

W. M. Alcott of 223 Burchett street was piloting a small tractor east on Sycamore Canyon road. To it was attached a water wagon as a trailer. He had been to secure water for a steam shovel.

Lowell Glenn, who is 11 years of age, and his brother had been to a store on Verdugo road and were on their way back to their home. This is located on the Sanford ranch in Sycamore canyon.

Makes Statement

"As I approached the fork of this road," reports Mr. Alcott, "two boys coming along the side road asked me for a ride. I informed them that if they could wait until I could get to the fork of the road I would be glad to stop and they could get on the seat of the wagon. I proceeded toward the fork of the road, the boys following behind at the side of the road as I supposed to where I was to stop to take them on the seat.

"Just before I reached the fork of the road, where I was to stop, I heard one of the boys cry out and I immediately stopped my tractor and, upon looking back, found that, instead of the boys having walked behind the machine, as I supposed they were doing, they had jumped on the side of the trailer to ride up to the point where they were to get on the seat.

Found Unconscious

"I immediately went back and found one of the boys lying on the road behind the tractor who had evidently fallen off the trailer which had run over him. I noticed that the boy was unconscious. At that time a man came along with an automobile whom I asked to take the boy to the hospital. He immediately got in the machine with the boy and took him to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital. Upon arrival there, he was informed by the physician that he had died before he got there."

The body is now in charge of Kiefer & Eyerick. The date has not been set for the inquest.

Love Trysts Spoiled By Callous Bandit

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Aug. 2.—A masked bandit operating on the Ridge Road known to police as "Lovers' Lane," robbed three couples engaged in holding love trysts on the famous driveway early this morning. According to reports received at police headquarters, the bandit confiscated the car of the first couple and forced J. Nicolosi and his girl companion to accompany him while he robbed two other couples sitting in cars parked along the road. Several hundred dollars in jewelry was obtained by the highwayman.

RAINS HALT FIRES

SPOKANE, Aug. 2.—Rains and mist have halted the Idaho Forest fires after eight camps and many chutes were burned out, it was reported today. According to forest rangers the fires raged mostly in unmarketable timber.

WAR AGAINST LOS FELIZ DISTRICT CLAIMS

Members of Association Demand Relief From Heavy Payments

At a meeting of the Los Feliz Tax Protective Association, held at 11 o'clock this morning in the offices of G. H. Wende, 102-A East Broadway, attorney and council for the organization, concrete steps were taken preparatory to defending the scores of actions brought by Steddom & Blanchard, et al, of Los Angeles, against local property owners who came within the Los Feliz assessment district.

The following resolution was adopted at the conclusion of the meeting:

"Resolved, that whereas the Los Feliz Tax Protective Association has subscribed over $100 in cash, and has pledged close to $1000 more, to pay any and all assessments due in Los Feliz improvement district, said assessments having been levied for the improvement of Los Feliz Road from the Southern Pacific right of way to Glendale avenue;

Demand for List

"The Los Feliz Tax Protective Association therefore calls upon the Los Angeles Paving Company, Elliott & Horn, Quirk Bros., Steddom & Blanchard and N. K. Smith to furnish the association with the list of assessments imposed within the above stated district, which have at any time been bought or owned by them; and that said assessments will be paid by the Los Feliz Tax Protective Association at their call, from the moneys now in the hands of G. H. Wende, L. W. Chobe and Miss Ida F. Rittenhouse, of the organization.

"And Be It Further Resolved, that we, the members of the Los Feliz Tax Protective Association, deplore the bringing of any action or suit without proper notification of the people involved, in order to give them an opportunity to pay; and thus to save needless expense to the county and to its citizens, in lumbering up the courts with needless actions."

Assessment Swells

During the progress of the meeting Mrs. D. W. Goodfellow, one of the property owners involved, and a member of the association, disclosed that an original assessment of $2.70 had been swelled to $46.75 by the Steddom & Blanchard company.

Mr. Wende stated that he would go to the office of the county clerk, Los Angeles, this afternon, and obtain a complete list of the actions brought; and that tonight he would appear before the meeting of the Glendale City Council with this list and other evidence, in an effort to obtain the official co-operation of this body in securing some relief in the matter.

The following statement is issued by Mr. Wende:

"In representing the Los Feliz Tax Protective Association, as their counsel in the defence of actions brought by Steddom & Blanchard, et al., of Los Angeles, I intend to base my defense on three grounds—legal, moral and practical.

"Legally, I believe the plain-

PERSHING CALLS TO SEE HARDING

President's Wife Receives General and Gives Him Encouraging Reports

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—General John J. Pershing, active head of the United States Army promptly on his arrival here, called at the presidential suite to inquire for his chief, President Harding. General Pershing was received by Mrs. Harding and came away manifestly pleased with the reports of progress on the president's condition that were given him.

"Every one seems so encouraged," he said, "you can't imagine my feeling of relief."

General Pershing is on a business trip. He is inspecting the Pacific Coast military establishments with particular attention to the citizen military training camps. He will leave for the northwest Tuesday.

At Del Monte, addressing several hundred boys at the military training camp there, General Pershing declared he had found "red" and "pacifist" propaganda and urged training of young citizens so that they might be prepared for any emergency. He declared the United States could never become a militaristic nation.

LATEST NEWS

MANY HURT IN L. A. TRAFFIC CRASHES

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2.—Thirteen persons were injured in traffic accidents during the twenty-four hours ending this morning, and figures for July revealed that more persons were injured in the month just closed than any other period of this year, according to police records. Three hundred and ten persons have been killed by traffic accidents in Los Angeles since the first of the year.

DENY BRITISH ASK TO PUBLISH NOTES

PARIS, Aug. 2.—Denial was made at the foreign office today that Great Britain has asked permission to publish the reparations documents exchanged with France.

FOUR INJURED IN SHOOTING AFFAIR

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Two patrolmen were possibly fatally injured and two other men wounded in a shooting affair this afternoon. Early reports said unidentified bandits in an automobile were across from the police station and opened fire with an automatic rifle.

JOHNSON AND GRIFFIN ARE WINNERS

SEABRIGHT, Aug. 2.—"Little Bill" Johnson, San Francisco, and Clarence J. Griffin, Los Angeles, former national doubles champions, today completed a victory over Wallace Bates, University of California, and Harvey Snodgrass, of Los Angeles, winning the third set of their match in the Seabright invitation tournament, in the sets played today.

Mid-Continent Field Cuts Oil Production

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 2.—Curtailment of production in the mid-continent oil fields has started, it was shown today, when reports that refineries in Oklahoma and Kansas were temporarily shutting down or curtailing production were received here.

The Mutual Oil Company announced closing of its refinery at Chanute, Kansas. W. C. Glen, local manager of the Cosden & Company refineries, said he had been notified that his company's refineries at Tulsa, Okla., were being closed.

Both "shutdowns" are temporary, it was said. The curtailing of production follows a meeting here Tuesday of more than a hundred mid-continent refiners, at which it was agreed that the situation confronting the industry warranted limitation.

It was believed here other shutdowns would follow almost daily.

Wedding Culminates Romance of 35 Years

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 2.—A romance of 35 years was culminated here today when Edwin A. Brown, Denver's "millionaire tramp," student of social conditions, author and globe trotter, was united in marriage to Miss Eva Thompson of Lincoln, Neb.

Miss Thompson, a wealthy heiress, is the sister of David Eugene Thompson, former United States ambassador to Brazil and Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown are both 68 years old.

Vollmer Will Tackle L. A. Post One Year

BERKELEY, Calif., Aug. 2.—August Vollmer, Berkeley's "scientific cop," will endeavor to reform police conditions in Los Angeles in a year. Named to succeed Chief Louis Oaks, removed by Mayor Cryer who had "lost confidence" in him, Vollmer said he would seek a year's leave of absence from his Berkeley position, expecting to return at the end of that time, as he said he considered his Berkeley work as chief and instructor at the University of California, as his chief life work.

Fresh Military Coup Reported From China

PEKING, Aug. 2.—Another military coup emanating either from Paoting-Fu or Tientsin is reported today. The police have received orders to keep strict watch. Troops have been moved toward Nanking, where the governor is practically the prisoner of his own men.

SECRETARY FOR PRESIDENT HERE

Comes to Take Part in Masonic Ceremony at Hollywood Bowl

LOS ANGELES, Aug 2—George B. Christian, Jr., secretary to President Harding, arrived here this morning, to present the president's speech in Hollywood Bowl this afternoon. The function was part of the president's itinerary but his illness in San Francisco altered plans for his being present in person.

Christian, who was accompanied by several other members of the president's party, was met at the Arcade Station by the thirty members of the Marion Commandery Knights Templar, who had come from Ohio.

The Masonic ceremony will start this afternoon with a parade in Hollywood with several commanderies from various parts of Southern California participating. After reaching the Bowl, Christian will personally represent President Harding at the ceremony.

During the afternoon, Christian will also address several thousand children at the Coliseum which the president had planned to do while here.

G. A. R. Sends Gift of Flag to President

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—A committee from the Grand Army of the Republic, headed by Grandon E. Adams and C. B. Wilson, today presented President Harding with a flag. The flag was to have been presented in Los Angeles and when the president's trip to the southland was called off the G. A. R. appointed the committee to bring the flag here. The committee did not see the president but it was received on his behalf by a member of the executive staff.

A letter accompanied the flag expressing the sympathy of the G. A. R. and the Women's Relief Corps of California and Nevada for the president in his illness, and wishing him speedy recovery.

Warships Are Rushed To Guard Foreigners

MANILA, Aug. 2.—Advices from Amoy, where there has been fighting between contending Chinese factions for control of the city, today stated that, two Japanese destroyers and some American gunboats had arrived to protect foreigners. Two British gunboats which left Hong Kong for Amoy yesterday are expected to arrive soon.

Opinions Differ Over Method To End Ruhr Strife

WHILE the French and British reparation notes have not been made public, it is understood that the two sets of views contrast as follows:

FRANCE—Demands cessation of passive resistance in the Ruhr before negotiations are opened; insists on retention of French troops in the Ruhr until Germany pays; opposes the appointment of an international commission to determine what Germany must pay.

BRITISH — Suggests appointment of an international commission to fix the exact amount of German reparations and method of payments; favors more lenient policy towards Germany economically and the restoration of German industries.

Great Britain announced her intention to publish her reparations correspondence with France in hope of forcing worldwide pressure for a settlement. Premier Baldwin of England and Foreign Secretary Lord Curzon, speaking in Parliament, emphasized the necessity for haste.

Ramsay McDonald, leader of the opposition (Laborite) in the House of Commons, accused France of continuing the war after peace was declared. Italy informally agrees to support the English policy. England asked permission to publish war reparation documents.

SHAKE-UP LOOMS IN POLICE DEPT.

Chief Vollmer to Institute Many Changes in Force, Is Prediction

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 2.—One of the greatest shake-ups in the police department the city has ever known was predicted today when August Vollmer of Berkeley, newly-appointed chief of police, here to succeed L. D. Oaks, ousted by Mayor Cryer, takes up his new duties tomorrow.

In his message of acceptance, Chief Vollmer hinted to Mayor Cryer that he would immediately set in operation his famous scientific methods of detecting and apprehending criminals. It is believed in police circles that Chief Vollmer will soon establish the department here on a firm, efficient basis and to that end may oust scores of officers.

Interest in the police shake-up, which started Saturday when Chief Oaks dismissed Captain R. L. Heath, commander of Central Station, was centered today in Heath's appearance before the police commission for an investigation of the charges against him.

Offers Airedale to President, Is Jailed

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—Stephen Reynolds had heard that President Harding is pining for "Laddie Boy." Stephen has an Airedale and today he took the dog to the Palace and attempted to deliver the dog to the presidential suite.

But Police Sergeant Hippley halted the dog and his master and because Stephen appeared to have quaffed too strongly of the cup that cheers both landed in jail.

Army Officer's Wife Slays Son, Suicides

SAN JOSE, Aug. 2.—Believed to have been temporarily deranged, Mrs. Julius Lindenstruth, 36, wife of Maj. Lindenstruth, U. S. A., retired, early today shot and killed her 13-year-old son, Avery, then committed suicide herself by shooting. The shots did not awaken Maj. Lindenstruth and the tragedy was not discovered until he awakened. A "farewell note" was found.

Discounts Reports of Farmers' Hard Times

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The farmers of the nation are not nearly so badly off as they have been pictured to the public, Eugene Myer, manager of the War Finance corporation, said here today. He is here on a series of conferences between agricultural loan agencies and Finance Corporation representatives. Many farmers, Myer said, resent the exaggerated reports of their conditions.

BRITAIN WILL APPEAL TO WORLD IN DISPUTE

Seeks United Action Over Ruhr Reparations Issue; Situation Serious

BULLETIN

PARIS, Aug. 2.—Possibility that Premier Stanley Baldwin, of England, would announce a break with France on reparations issue, led to exciting trading on the Bourse today. Francs fell to the lowest level in history, selling at 17.51 for one United States dollar.

Despite the gloom in financial circles, political forces were optimistic that Baldwin would make an agreement with France.

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Official statements made in parliament today indicated that Great Britain will appeal to the world to force a settlement of the Ruhr reparations issue. It is possible this may prove the worst step towards independent British action. The allied negotiations are deadlocked and the British are seeking outside pressure to force France to show her hand.

Premier Stanley Baldwin, in the House of Commons, made a statement on the reparations problem, which did not reveal whether Great Britain intends to negotiate separately with Germany, and avoided mentioning the possibility of a break with France.

Seeks United Action

The statement indicated Great Britain would wait world reaction on today's invitation before taking the next step.

The statement declared the French and Belgian replies to the British reparations note held out no hope for a joint answer to the German reparations offer of June 7, or an early settlement of the problem. Curzon and Baldwin said that Great Britain will publish her reparations notes showing the world her endeavors to bring about a settlement.

Hope was expressed that this action might convince the world of the imperative necessity for "prompt and united action."

Two Communications

Great Britain had sent two communications to France, one a note, the other a "covering" or explanatory document. Premier Baldwin, in Commons, revealed that France had ignored the note.

This note, the premier said, called upon Germany to stabilize the mark, balance the budget and submit to international cotrol by a financial administration. It advised Germany to withdraw all decreases organizing passive resistance, and to disavow sabotage in the Ruhr. Further the note advised Germany that if passive resistance were ended, France would revise her condtions of military occupation.

Lord Curzon emphasized the need for haste when he said:

"It is apparent many weeks might easily be consumed in preliminary exchange of opinions between the allies before any effective steps might be taken for termination of the present situation. Grat Britain, while regarding the interests of the allies as bound up with her own, and while shrinking from any action that might be thought inimical to the allied union, yet holds firmly to the view that the problem now cannot be evaded. The house characterized the situation as "very grave."

France Makes Reply

PARIS, Aug. 2.—The French foreign office, replying to that section of Premier Baldwin's address in the House of Commons today asking that the Franco-English correspondence on reparations be made public, late today, published a summary of the French reply to the recent British note.

The summary states first that cessation of passive resistance in the Ruhr must necessarily precede any negotiations between France and Germany.

The French reply as outlined by the summary also asked whether it was England's intention to discuss the inter-allied debts and reparations jointly. More detailed information was sought by France as to England's plans for the allied commission to pass on the reparations questions. France asked what would be the composition of the commission; what powers would be represented; what method would be followed in selecting the members of the expert commission to study and fix Germany's capacity to pay.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Stanley of 814 East Harvard street are leaving Sunday via automobile for San Francisco, where they will spend several days before going to Davis, where Mr. Stanley will enter the Davis Farm school in the fall. Mrs. Stanley, before her recent marriage, was Miss Helen Engle.

Friends of the J. B. Sherwood family of 137 North Orange street are interested in a vacation trip they are taking. Mrs. Sherwood is visiting in the north and will go on east to meet Mr. Sherwood in Danville, Ill. They will also spend some time in Indiana, returning home in six weeks. Miss Helen Sherwood is visiting her brother in northern California.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Davis of 333 North Louise street entertained as dinner guests Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Swartz and daughter, Miss Susanne Swartz of Winfield, Kan.; Mrs. Freebin and daughter, Miss Lucille Freebin of Mexico City; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Blythe and daughter, Miss Lois Blythe, and Mrs. Mitchell of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. George Blythe and Mrs. M. E. Blythe of Glendale.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Derrick and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fritz have just returned from a two weeks vacation by auto through Yosemite National Park to Minden and Reno, Nevada, returning by the way of Truckee, Lake Tahoe, Sacramento and San Francisco. Mr. Derrick is Supervisor of the International Correspondence Schools, Los Angeles District. Mr. Fritz is a representative of the I C S in Los Angeles. They report having had a very enjoyable vacation but glad to be back in Glendale.

Miss Olive Pixley of 116 West Lomita avenue left yesterday for Big Bear, where she will spend three or four weeks of her vacation. Miss Zoss of Los Angeles accompanied her and will spend a few days as her guest. Later, Miss Sarah Hommer of Glendale will join Miss Pixley and remain with her for two weeks. Miss Pixley and Miss Zoss are United States examiners of the naturalization department, and are the only two young women examiners in the United States.

Social Events

Church Wedding

One of the most elaborate of the season's weddings took place last night, Wednesday, August 1, 1923, at St. James Methodist church, Los Angeles, where Miss Helen S. Appleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Appleton, of 721 East Windsor road, became the bride of Richard L. Grauel, of Fresno, Calif.

Rev. A. F. Hasse, pastor of St. James, officiated, performing the ring ceremony at 8:30 o'clock, in the presence of a large assembly of friends and relatives from Glendale and Los Angeles, where the bride made her home before coming to Glendale.

The church was most beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and blossoms of many hues.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Rubetta Schoutts of Los Angeles, and Miss Lillian Criswell of Glendale gave a delightful musical program. Miss Schoutts played "Andante" (E. Lamare), and accompanied Miss Criswell who sang "O Promise Me" and played the Lohengrin Bridal Chorus for the bridal procession and the Mendelssohn Wedding March after the ceremony.

Mrs. Harold Greenbaum was matron of honor, Miss Appleton having served as bridesmaid at her wedding early in the spring. The bridesmaids were Miss Ruth Gray and Miss Ruth Whyte.

The flower girls, Beatrice Granas and Helen Tannenbaum and the little ring bearer, Lloyd Williams, were pupils of the bride who is the popular teacher of the first grade in the Logan Street school, Los Angeles.

Miss Appleton was most charming in a gown of heavy white satin, embroidered with pearl and satin beads. She wore a long veil fastened with pearls and a cluster of orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and maidenhair fern.

She entered on the arm of her father and was preceded by the matron of honor in white satin with a bouquet of pink sweetpeas and maidenhair fern, and the bridesmaids, Miss Gray in old rose and Miss Whyte in pale yellow satin with hats to match. The little flower girls wore frocks of turquoise blue satin and the ring bearer was in white satin, carrying the ring on a white satin cushion.

Mr. Grauel was attended by Elmer F. Smith, brother-in-law of the bride. The ushers were Myron Douglass, Richard Sorrick, Ray Miller and John Robbins.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Grauel left this morning for a honeymoon trip to the Yosemite and the Big Basin. Later they will go to Santa Cruz for the rest of the summer. They expect to make their home in Los Angeles but may take a trip to the Orient first.

Mrs. Grauel has been complimented by a number of social courtesies recently and received many beautiful gifts.

The bride's trousseau was largely brought from the Orient by the bride's sister, Mrs. Elmer F. Smith, who has recently returned from a trip around the world.

Glendale guests were Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Appleton and Frederic Appleton, father, mother and brother of the bride; Mrs. Helen Helms and son Jack, Mrs. Hoyt, Miss Osbourn, John Clancy, Misses Corinne and Florence Heacock, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Allen, Mrs. Edith Wing and her mother, Mrs. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wells, Miss Edith Wells, Miss Lillian Criswell, Miss Hazel Jaquiss, Mrs. Raeth and Miss Beatrice Raeth.

Girl Scouts Meet

Glendale Girl Scouts, Troop 1, held a meeting Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Miss Marjorie Temple, 145 North Orange street. The girls are making fine progress in the work on the new flags, all of it being done by hand.

Plans were made for the annual summer camping trip, which will take place the latter part of August. The camp site has not been selected, but will be decided upon during the coming week.

Refreshments of cake, punch and home made chocolate fudge were served by the following committee: Lucille Beach, Cecil Chase, Bertha Brown and Alice Hill.

Members present, in addition to those previously named, were Alice Carpenter, Margery Brown, Mary Jo Phillips, Alexandria Bagley, Wilma Gosser, Vivian Nay, Marjorie Hart, Carolyn Ayars, Alice Duey, and the captain Gladys Sharpe.

Love is man's rightful asset, though often turns to calamity.

Home Ceremony

Miss Genevieve M. Tubbs became the bride of John Shaffer, Wednesday night, August 1, 1923, at a ceremony taking place at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. Tubbs, at 1520 South Central avenue. Rev. John R. Hunter was the officiant, reading the marriage service at 8 o'clock before a company of fifty relatives and friends.

The Tubbs home was most beautifully and artistically arranged for the wedding. Baskets of blue delphium and pink amaryills and ferns and Shasta daisies decorated the various rooms. Long strands of fern and Cecil Brunner roses formed an archway in the living-room where the bridal party stood for the ceremony. Festoons of fern and roses artistically arranged from the chandeliers to the corners of the rooms were also used.

Just at the hour set for the service, Mrs. Maude Miller Gallentine, accompanied by Miss Anna LeGore, sang "Because" (d'Hardelot).

For the entrance of the bridal party, Miss Anna LeGore, aunt of the bride, played the "Lohengrin March."

The first members of the bridal party to enter were Mrs. J. B. Cail and Miss Roberta Shaffer of Los Angeles, sisters of the groom. They wore blue changeable taffeta with silver wreaths in their hair, and carried arm bouquets of pink sweetpeas and maidenhair fern.

Next came the matron of honor, Mrs. Chauncey Greely Kolts, formerly Miss Helen Heyser of Los Angeles. She wore a gown of apricot taffeta embroidered in pastel-shaded silk and carried an arm bouquet of yellow rosebuds and fern.

Miss Tubbs presented a most pleasing picture as she entered the room with her father, Earl E. Tubbs. She wore a bridal gown of white satin and georgette embroidered with silver crystal beads. The bridal veil was caught with a bandeau of orange blossoms and lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of white roses, lilies of the valley and fern.

Mr. Shaffer was attended by Ed Nelk of Van Nuys.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held, Mrs. Shaffer cutting her wedding cake, which was served with brick ice cream. Punch was also served during the evening.

Those assisting in receiving were Miss Addie Shaffer of Glendale and Mrs. Louise Knotte of Los Angeles. Misses Mildred Irene Tubbs, Barbara Anna Gilman and Lois Soule assisted in serving the refreshments.

Late in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Shaffer left by motor for Los Angeles. Mrs. Shaffer wore a going-away suit of dark blue tricotine with a fall hat in harmonizing shades.

Mrs. Shaffer and her family have been residents of Glendale for the past two years, coming here from Los Angeles, where she attended the Los Angeles schools.

Mr. Shaffer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shaffer of Los Angeles, and is in business in that city. He is also a graduate of the Los Angeles schools where he first became acquainted with Mrs. Shaffer.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaffer will make their home in Los Angeles upon the completion of their new home.

Regular Meeting

Members of Union Label League No. 400 held their regular business meeting last night in the I. O. O. F. hall. At this time the members were urged to patronize Glendale merchants carrying union labeled goods.

Following the initiation at which C. Hoyer and S. Young were taken into membership, a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served.

The next meeting of the league will be held August 15, it is announced.

Plan Beach Trip

A pleasant trip is being anticipated by the members of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Mark's Episcopal church, who are to motor to Hermosa Beach Saturday afternoon to be guests of Mrs. Mortimer Baker of 215 West Milford street, who is summering there.

At the society meeting Tuesday night in the Guild Hall plans were made for the trip Saturday. Mrs. Philip K. Kemp, secretary of the Glendale branch of the organization, will accompany the girls.

Guest Honoree

Miss Alice Hill of 333 Riverdale drive was hostess at a pretty midsummer luncheon Wednesday in honor of her house guest, Miss Dixie Mason of Aurora, Ill.

A dainty color scheme of light pink was carried out in the centerpiece of carnations, hand-painted place cards, and table appointments.

Those present were the Misses Lucille Beach, Marjorie Temple, Carolyn Ayars, Marjorie Hart, Vivian Nay, Wilma Gosser, Frederica Browne, Dixie Mason, Gladys Sharpe, Mrs. L. E. Hill, and the hostess.

NEW SUBDIVISION PLACED ON SALE

Country Club Highlands on Pico Boulevard Is Offered Buyers

A. G. Smith, of Glendale, and Senator Benjamin C. Sheldon, of Hollywood, subdividers of the popular Wing Orange Grove tract on East Colorado street, now announce the opening of their Country Club Highlands subdivision of 714 lots on Pico boulevard, midway between Los Angeles and Santa Monica.

In making this announcement the subdividers name Marvin Smith as tract manager, in charge of sales. It was Marvin Smith, many will remember, who had charge of the Wing tract, selling it out entirely, to the extent of over 100 lots, in ninety days, a record for high-class Glendale property.

Before Country Club Highlands was opened for sale, Mr. Smith states, before, in fact, it was even staked out, a number of Glendale people came out, looked it over—and put down their money, so sold were they on the assured profits to be made there.

Glendale Buyers

Among these Glendale buyers are G. H. Wende, attorney, 102-A East Broadway, six business lots on Pico boulevard; E. G. Warren, real estate broker, 300½ South Brand boulevard, said to be one of Glendale's shrewdest investors, four business lots on Pico boulevard; George E. Farmer, cashier of the Glendale State Bank, two business lots; Charles Kausen and E. E. Brown, of the realty firm of Kausen & Brown, 115 West Broadway, two business lots each on Pico boulevard; Thomas J. Fambrough, 206 North Orange street, one of Glendale's foremost builders, two business lots on Pico boulevard; and George H. Marsh, 1249 South Central avenue, chief train dispatcher for the Southern Pacific railroad, two business lots on Pico boulevard.

It would appear from this list of local investors who have bought Pico boulevard frontage in the Country Club Highlands tract that this frontage must offer a decided opportunity, Marvin Smith points out.

"And that this is the case is putting it mildly," he says, "for at the prices we are selling this Pico frontage—$80 and up to $135 per front foot—there is nothing in Southern California that offers an equal opportunity to make real and quick money.

Predicts Increase

"This property will not only double in value within the next five years, it will treble and quadruple in value. G. Gordon Whitnall, director of the City Planning Commission, told why, in a recent article in the Los Angeles Examiner. He said that Pico boulevard is the shortest route from the city to the beaches, and that it lies between the three other main boulevards. 'As the population of Los Angeles increases,' said Mr. Whitnall, 'Pico boulevard will find itself right in the middle, where the current is deepest.' That is why Pico boulevard frontage at $80 a front foot is a give-away. I prophesy that what we are selling for $80 a front foot will sell within ten years for $800 a front foot!

"There are other factors involved in the tremendous development that is coming to Pico boulevard. One of the most important of these is the purchase by the Fox Film Company of a large tract exactly opposite Country Club Highlands, where, starting September 1, they will erect a $3,500,000 studio, which will be the largest film production plant on the west coast. The Buster Keaton Company, also, have bought near us and will erect a modern film plant. And we are just across the hill from Culver City, citadel of filmland.

"We are, moreover, in the immediate vicinity of three splendid country clubs—the Rancho Golf Club, the Hillcrest Country Club and the California Country Club. It is by reason of being adjacent to two of these clubs and a stone's throw from the third that we have named our tract Country Club Highlands.

"Another important factor is that directly opposite our tract lies a modern city of 200 homes, where eight months ago there was nothing. Compare this with Hollywood, which in 1903, fifteen years after its founding, had a population of but 700.

Breezes From Ocean

"Still another factor of importance is to be found in the cool, invigorating breezes that blow over Country Club Highlands, all day long, from the ocean. We get full advantage of these breezes by reason of being on high ground. Our elevation also gives us a magnificent panoramic view of the city of Los Angeles, the mountains and the valley, a vista of never-tiring beauty, to north, south, east and west.

"Lots in Country Club Highlands are by no means limited to business frontage. We are concentrating on the Pico boulevard lots right now, because frontage is always the first to go, in a subdivision of this type. But, in addition, we have hundreds of the choicest residence lots, at prices of from $750, $800 and $900 up, with terms of 15 per cent cash and the balance spread over a period of five years—terms, we believe, that cannot be duplicated.

"Gas, water, electricity and street grading are included in these prices, with minimum restrictions of $3,500 on the residence lots. In a short time we expect to have twenty houses under way.

"There is only one Pico boulevard in Los Angeles and only one Southern California in the world," concludes Marvin Smith. "And here is a parting thought: Real estate is the only commodity whose second hand value is greater than the original price!"

SAVINGS BANK'S INFLUENCE TOLD

From Small Start in Scotch Cottage, System Is Now World-Wide Factor

Few people realize what an influence for good the savings bank has proven in the history of the world. Prior to the establishment of the first savings bank, which occurred in Scotland in the year 1810, pauperism was so common as to be the usual, rather than the unusual, condition.

It is said half the population of the British Isles was in a pauperized condition at that time, and that hundreds of thousands of people in Scotland lived on charity, according to data in the hands of A. R. Eastman, president of the Glendale State Bank.

This state of affairs was caused largely by the lack of facilities for depositing money such as are offered by the modern savings bank. The people really had no means of saving.

The Rev. Henry Duncan was the originator of the first savings bank. The smallest sum banks would accept then was the equivalent in American money of about $50, and as few people possessed that much the banking system did not meet the requirements of the majority of the people.

Rev. Duncan's idea was to open a "poor man's bank," where the smallest amount could be deposited.

Started In Cottage

The first savings bank was started in a little cottage, and the money was kept in an iron safe. People were suspicious at first, so the safe was provided with three locks. Rev. Duncan held one key and the other two were held by elders of the church. All three had to be present whenever the safe was opened.

Deposits the first year amounted to about $750. Little by little the bank grew, until in the fifth year they amounted to about $8000—quite a sizeable sum for the small village where the bank was located.

The effect of the bank was immediately felt. Poverty decreased substantially.

News of the venture traveled fast. People came to the village from all over to observe the workings of the bank and to carry the idea back home. Savings banks were established in every part of the British Isles, as well as in foreign countries, and all were patterned after the modest Scottish institution.

Facilities of Today

"It is difficult for us in the twentieth century to appreciate what a boon the savings bank has been in the world. We are so familiar with the savings bank that we perhaps do not avail ourselves of its facilities as much as we should," says Mr. Eastman.

"A century ago people had no safe place to put small sums. Consequently they had to use the mattress or some other crude means of secreting funds. They ran the risk of theft, and were constantly tempted to spend the money.

"Today we have strong banks that not only keep our money safe, in sums as low as $1, but pay interest, which permits your money to work for you and grow.

"Take advantage of twentieth century facilities—don't put yourself in the position of the people of a century ago."

PRICE REDUCTION FOR BATTERIES

Psenner Bros. Auto Electric Company Receives Word Of Substantial Cut

Psenner Bros., Auto Electric company has just received word from the Philadelphia Storage Battery company that a substantial reduction has been made on all batteries manufactured by them. The factory announced that tremendous increases in sales and economical distribution have made these lower prices possible. Despite the radical price reduction, the same high quality will be maintained in all Philco batteries.

"This price reduction came most unexpectedly," said Mr. Psenner, "and is sure to prove happy news to the multitude of car owners in Southern California, many of whom will need new batteries at this time of the year when summer heat commences to take its toll of the old.

Lowest Price

"The price of Philco batteries is now the lowest ever offered for standard batteries, which gives motorists the highest type of standard battery for approximately the same cost as especially constructed price batteries.

"Three different types of Philco batteries give motorists a choice of a one, one and a half, or two year guarantee battery depending on the number of months' battery service he wishes to buy. If the battery delivers more months of service than the guarantee calls for, which is the rule, the motorist is that many months to the good on battery service. If, however, the battery for some reason or other, fails to deliver the number of months' service called for in the guarantee, the dealer makes good the difference on a pro rata basis."

SOON TO START PRINTING PLANT

B. S. Bernard and His Son, Victor M. Bernard, to Establish Business

B. S. Bernard and son, Victor M. Bernard, have located in Glendale and will engage in a printing and advertising business. The Bernards are southerners, coming originally from Florida, where they published The Pensacola Journal and also The Meridian, Mississippi, Dispatch.

After disposing of these newspaper properties, Bernard, Sr., accepted a position as advertising manager of The New Orleans Daily States, during which time his son, Victor, was assistant advertising manager of The Maison-Blanche, probably the largest department store in the entire south.

Hear Call of West

The Bernards, however, heard the call of the west and about six years ago came to California and located in Fresno, where B. S. Bernard was advertising manager of The Fresno Herald and The Fresno Republican, while his son was advertising manager of The Co-Operative Californian, of that city.

The fame of Glendale reached them and they decided to come here and cast their lot in this city. The Bernard & Son plant is now in the process of erection and will be ready for operation in a very short time.

Another Printing Plant in Glendale for Glendale People!

BECAUSE of our unalterable faith in Glendale's present and future; because of our belief that Glendale is a pleasant place in which to live, we have ventured into business here, and have just installed a new PRINTING PLANT, equipped with the latest presses and type faces. Our long and varied experience in newspaper and advertising work enables us to render valuable service in the preparation of copy for anything from a visiting card up to a full-fledged newspaper. We know that when you have something printed you want it to serve its purpose. If it should sell, we supply the necessary "kick"; if it should announce, we see that it does so smoothly, gracefully, properly; if it should require formality, we blow the dust from our little book of etiquette, and you have the real thing. If originality is what you want, we call upon our unlimited resources and supply it.

We like Glendale. We like you, too. Everybody has been so all-fired nice to us that we've caught the spirit, and—

—as Secretary Sanders says—"Let's Co-operate!"

—We want to help you carry on the great work of making Glendale Grow! That's why we applied for a Membership to the Chamber of Commerce the very first thing. We intend to spend our money in Glendale, among Glendale merchants, for we know that their merchandise is as good as any anywhere. A dollar spent in Glendale stays, while one spent elsewhere never returns!

Don't Send That Job Out of Town

—If you fellows would only look around the Glendale Printing Shops, get their prices on work and compare them with out of town shops, you'd find that having a job of Printing done in Glendale will actually save you money. When a man cuts prices, he invariably cuts Quality, and this is one thing we will never do.

Plant Now In Full Operation

After waiting several days on electricians, stock, materials, etc., we are now prepared to accept jobs for immediate delivery. Every care will be used to give customers the very best possible service on any size job.

HARDING MAKES FURTHER GAINS

Every Effort Put Forth to Hold Ground; Warn of Over Confidence

did not venture in. The restful sleep which the president has succeeded in getting for the last few nights has been, perhaps, the most valuable single aid in restoring the president to that stage which the doctors term convalescence.

President Harding had another restful night and continued to make marked progress today on his road to recovery, it was announced at 8 o'clock this morning by Dr. Charles E. Sawyer.

The president awoke early after a refreshing sleep without any traces of fever whatever. His temperature at 8 o'clock was 98.6, his respiration 36, and his pulse 110, reflecting improvement on all points over the previous medical bulletin issued late yesterday.

Has Restful Night

"The president had a restful night," said Dr. Sawyer, after he and Dr. Joel T. Boone, had completed their preliminary examination of the patient between seven and eight o'clock this morning. Now that the president's temperature is normal, it has been the pulse and respiration that have been giving the doctors considerable concern as both have been abnormally high.

Over night, however there was an appreciable drop in both, and the physicians were much elated thereby.

Yesterday the president's pulse varied from 116 to 120, and this morning dropped down to 110. This morning's examination revealed the respiration is now down to 36. The physicians are convinced that satisfactory progress is being made and are apparently confident that the progress already attained will be maintained during the day.

After the preliminary examination this morning, by Doctors Boone and Sawyer the medical staff gathered for the using morning consultation after which a medical bulletin will be issued.

There was every indication, even before Dr. Sawyer's announcement, that the president has passed a restful night. He slept the early part of the night, awoke early and called for Dr. Boone on duty in an adjoining room. Mr. Harding chatted with the physician and appeared to be in excellent spirits.

Sleep Aids Recovery

The sleep has largely overcome the nervous exhaustion which Mr. Harding was suffering from to a marked degree when he arrived in San Francisco. The more he can sleep, the doctors said today, the more rapid will be his complete recovery. Offers of places other than the Palace hotel from the stage of his convalescence have been received here the last few days. All California, seemingly, wants the president to convalesce at some particular spot, but it is not probable that the president will be moved until he is moved to the train to return to Washington.

Dr. Sawyer's voice is the determining one in the plans, and he is strongly of the opinion that the president is getting along so well in his present location that it would be inadvisable to move him until the return trip can be safely attempted.

Mr. Harding himself is feeling so fit that he has already begun to feel a little impatient at remaining long in San Francisco. He said to Dr. Sawyer last night:

"What do you think about getting away on Sunday?"

Dr. Sawyer's reply was noncommittal, but it is very doubtful if any attempt will be made to move for a week at least.

Avoid Set-Back

The progress to date has been so satisfactory and the president has been so comfortable that the physicians are chary of inviting a set-back through over-eagerness to get the chief executive back to the White House.

Mrs. Harding is beginning to show slightly the strain she has been under during the past week. So long as the president's condition was considered "grave," she bore up with a fortitude that the physicians considered remarkable, in view of her own state of health. But now that the convalescent stage has been reached she appears tired and the physicians today are urging her to greater rest and more fresh air than she has been getting. They have told her that she can not risk having a breakdown at this stage.

The "lung condition" referred to in the official bulletins is continuing to improve. This refers to the white patches indicating broncho-pneumonia, and their appearance Monday night in the clinical examination later confirmed in the x-ray all along has been the most menacing and alarming factor in the president's case. These patches are now clearing up and virtually all danger of pneumonia has now fled.

Build Up Strength

The great job ahead of the physicians today, they said, lies in building up the president's strength by slow and steady stages. There is no royal or easy road to this improvement, Dr. Sawyer said, and anything precipitate or hurried is likely to lose in a few hours the ground gained over several tedious days. The president's digestive abilities are still badly impaired as a result of the poison of the ptomaine attack and the purgatives administered so freely during the first few days of his illness, and they require "nursing along."

The president's pulse and respiration formed one of the major concerns of the doctors today. Both are still high, far too high, the doctors believe. The president's pulse rate ranged from 116 to 120, according to the last medical bulletin and the respiration from 30 to 40. Against these seemingly alarming figures, however, has stood the fact that his breathing has become less labored and more regular.

The president's chart of recovery from the day on which his illness became "serious" follows:

	Normal	July 30	July 31	Aug. 1
Temperature—	98.6	101-100.6	100- 99.6	100- 98.6
Pulse—	74	118-125	120-118.	116-110
Respiration—	18	33- 34	40- 36	40- 36

KRESS CO. ENTERS GLENDALE FIELD

Open 160th Store of Huge Business Organization In Glendale

The opening of the S. H. Kress & Company's one hundred and sixtieth store in the Lawson building, at 143-145 North Brand boulevard, marks the entry of another of the nation's commercial giants into the business life of Glendale and gives this city an establishment that is fitted to meet the needs of Glendale adequately for years to come. The informal opening of the new store will be held tomorrow, when visitors will be invited to inspect the store and its immense and varied stocks, and when a seven-piece orchestra will help to entertain the throngs that are expected at the opening. The first business day will be on Saturday of this week, when the thousands of bargains will be placed on sale, with a number of leaders that will prove attractive to careful buyers.

The store will be open Friday from 3 to 5:30 p. m. and from 7:30 to 9 p. m., and no sales will be made on this day.

D. G. Carver, who has been assistant manager of the Kress store in Los Angeles, has been appointed manager of the local branch, and he has been assisted in preparing for the opening by F. J. O'Hara, manager of the San Diego store, who was sent here for a short time to lend Mr. Carver the benefit of his experience.

Huge Sales Force

The sales force during the opening days will be over one hundred girls, and it is probable that the greater number of these will be retained permanently on the payroll.

One feature of the fixtures in the new establishment is the glass squares that are adjustable to the size of the various kinds of merchandise and that permit easier access to and better display of the stocks in the eighteen departments. In the candy department the stocks are kept in dust and fly proof boxes at all times and are never handled by any of the clerks or customers. The candy receptacles are filled in the basement and sent up on a dumb waiter in their sealed boxes and placed directly in the counters, where customers may make their selections from the displays that are maintained permanently.

Big Buying Power

Purchases of all lines of merchandise for the Kress stores are made through the central buying organization in New York, which maintains a staff of experts who comb the markets of the world for new lines. This means, Mr. Carver declares, a buying power that insures the people of Glendale the best the market affords at pricies that are impossible to any organization operating on a smaller scale than the Kress firm does. Carload shipments in every line will keep the Glendale stocks up to the minute the year round, and these have been pouring in here since the lease was first taken on the Lawson building, where the firm has floor space of close to 14,000 square feet in the two floors at its disposal.

It is the policy of the Kress organization to develop its own executives from among its employes, and any man or woman who shows aptitude in the work of the firm is given a thorough course of training in a specially conducted school for executives, thus absorbing an intimate knowledge of the methods and ideals of the firm. Employes who remain in the Kress service for six months are insured by the firm free of charge for the amount of one year's salary.

The deciding factors in bringing S. H. Kress & Company to Glendale, according to Mr. O'Hara, were the progressive character of the citizens, the steady growth of the city itself, the resources shown by a careful survey of the business conditions here, and the certainty of an even greater and more wealthy future than the city has known before.

THEATRES

THE GLENDALE

Johnny Hines in "Luck" is the feature at the Glendale theatre today. Those who remember this versatile star in "Burn 'Em Up Barnes" will need no introduction to the present offering. Hines is the same star of the famous "Torchy" comedies.

Jackson Gregory wrote the story of "Luck," which originally appeared in a popular magazine. The author is widely known, and a story from his pen has a decided drawing appeal.

And the strong supporting cast includes Robert Edeson, Edmund Breeze, Violet Mersereau, Charlie Murray, Flora Finch, Warner Richmond and Polly Moran.

The story of "Luck" concerns the son of a rich man, who wagers that he can make $100,000 in one year, starting with no capital. How he does it affords one of the funniest films of the year.

THE GATEWAY

"Main Street," with Florence Vidor, Harry Myers, Noah Beery and Monte Blue, a magnificent adaptation of the sensationally successful novel of the same title, by Sinclair Lewis, is the attraction de luxe at the Gateway theatre today. Harry Beaumont directed the production.

Whether the masterful acting of the capable cast, or the sheer power of the story put this film into the big-hit class, it is hard to say, but it is one of the outstanding productions of the season.

The story, very briefly, is of Carol Kennicott, brought to Gopher Prairie by her husband, Dr. Kennicott. There she rebels against what she considers the narrowness and lack of culture of a small town. She tries to change things, but the inhabitants are phlegmatic and offer no encouragement. The climax will give every spectator a shock.

All Sympathy For Harding
Better Market For Wheat
Deer Season Now Open
Show Home Town Loyalty

By Gil A. Cowan

SOUTHERN California today must feel as though the eclipse due here September 10 arrived ahead of schedule. President Harding's inabliity to visit the southland must be keenly felt by all of those municipalities and organizations, including Glendale, which had prepared to pay him homage.

Pneumonia is of such a nature that exertion is dangerous, and surely the loyal people will be glad that the nation's chief executive escaped serious illness, even though he has missed the most interesting part of his proposed itinerary.

Crooks are resorting to science. Chloroform has been used by a burglar in Oxnard, according to reports, which permitted the woman victim to vaguely realize what was occurring without the ability to aid herself.

While this might be referred to as "painless burglary," the law should be very certain in convicting the scientific criminal. If he has brains enough to be a "doctor" there is no need of endeavoring to earn a dishonest living unless it be a doctor starving to death.

Northwestern wheat growers are organizing to fight the bearish prices on their principal crop. There is no reason why their plea for a more stable market should not be heard.

Wheat is a commodity that can well be protected by legislation from the onslaughts of the stock market gambler. The United States is designed to govern such conditions, otherwise our democracy is a failure.

Regulatory legislation is always desired if it is in the interests of the public and the farmer is in the majority.

In Ventura county the deer season is now open. Reports of the first day reveal a slaughter of the defenseless, fleet mountain quarry which brings sadness to the hearts of many nature lovers, while sportsmen are glad for the opportunity to show their prowess.

Perhaps there is nothing more thrilling than bringing down a stag as it bounds over the mountain crags and California's coast range has some of the most inaccessible heights to which one would aspire. There must be a tingle in pulse as the fatal bullet is sent crashing into the beautiful beast, yet there are some who say the same thrill is obtained in "clicking" the shutter of a camera and having a picture of the scene.

Be that as it may, deer hunting will continue until the species is extinct, we presume.

Merchants' co-operation in bringing the crowds to town is most easily accomplished through the columns of the home town newspaper, which is loyal not only to the business men, but the public as well.

The advertisements of merchants and manufacturers found in these columns is to be believed for they literally pass through the acid test of popular judgment. It is possible for metropolitan stores to consistently bilk the public, although great strides have been made of late in the truthful advertising campaign.

Yet, like the politician, the small city finds the most honorable people, men and women above reproach. You will notice it in Glendale or any other city of its size. But buy away from home and see what happens. It's your money they are after for friendship and reputation are but matters of the passing moment.

The writer of Comment visited Oxnard yesterday. Quite a bean center, by the way. Here is where Father James O'Neill, formerly of the Holy Family Catholic church of Glendale, now presides over a thriving parish.

A sugar factory is again opening for a season after two years of inactivity. Crops are good, the country prosperous. Twenty years from now you will see an entirely different Ventura county.

Land now selling for $800 an acre will be worth three times that sum. It is bound to come, just like the development of Glendale and other parts of Los Angeles county.

And Glendale has some reputation up around here.

Barbers, business men, bankers—all know Glendale. "Fastest growing city in America," they echo. Seems to me we've heard that before.

Musical Program at First Baptist Church

A musical program of special interest is to be given Sunday night at the First Baptist church in place of the regular Sunday night church service.

Mrs. Eva Kurtz Ghrist, organist of the church, announced this morning that the musical program will be featured by the appearance of Tilda Rohr, Swiss contralto of Los Angeles. Miss Rohr has been heard in Glendale before and her many friends will be interested in her singing Sunday night.

Miss Rohr is to sing "Just As I Am" (Danks), and "His Eye Is On the Sparrow" (Scott), and a duet with Mrs. Park Arnold, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee" (Lackney). Mrs. Ghrist will acompany her.

Man is blind in his downfall until experience opens his eyes.

PRINTING TRADE MEN ORGANIZED

Franklin Association Formed By Representatives of Valley Concerns

A Franklin Printers' Association of the San Fernando valley was formed in Glendale last night, following a dinner held in the auditorium of the Citizens' building, 150 South Brand boulevard, at which twenty-eight printers or representatives of printing or allied organizations were present.

The gathering was at the call of Edward Pickering, field secretary of the Franklin Printers' Association of Southern California, who presided. He was assisted by Mr. Stewart, secretary of the Orange Belt Franklin Printers' Association.

Addresses were made by D. E. Coates of Lankershim, proprietor of the Lankershim Publishing company; Clem Rees, of Los Angeles, manager of the Zellerbach Paper company; W. E. West, of Los Angeles, manager of the California Ink company; N. Goodwin, of Glendale, manager of the International Chemical Products company; A. T. Cowan, proprietor and publisher of The Glendale Evening News, and others prominent in the printing and publishing business of the San Fernando valley and Southern California.

Organization's Object

It was decided that the object of the organization shall be:

"To encourage and develop in Southern California a friendly, fraternal and intimate acquaintance among those engaged in printing, engraving, electrotyping, binding, paper and printers' supply houses and allied trades; to secure concert of action on all matters affecting the printing industry as a whole; and to promote the general interest of all concerned."

Following the program of speeches, a business meeting was called and the following officers and directors elected:

Officers Named

H. L. Adams, of the Superior Printing company, 104 South Isabel street, Glendale, president; D. E. Coates, of the Lankershim Publishing company, Lankershim, vice-president; V. M. Bernard, of Bernard & Son, printers, 109 South Maryland avenue, Glendale, secretary; and Harry L. Sinclair, of the Sinclair Printing company, Burbank, and D. R. Patterson, manager of the job department, Glendale Evening News, directors.

A permanent name for the organization will be decided upon at the next meeting, which will be held Thursday, August 9, time and place to be announced by the secretary, between now and then.

The rooster, a fish caught off Guaymas, Mexico, may grow to seven feet in length, with a weight of hundreds of pounds.

MERGER OF LOAN CO.'S ANNOUNCED

Golden State and Glendale Building and Loan Firms Are Consolidated

Negotiations that have been pending for some time were closed yesterday when the Golden State Building & Loan Association, 104 East Broadway, was consolidated with the Glendale Building & Loan Association, 212½ West Broadway, the new concern to be carried on under the style of the Golden State Building & Loan Association. The new arrangement has already taken effect.

The Golden State Building & Loan Association was organized here last December by a group of the leading bankers and business men of Glendale, with the object of making loans to people of moderate means for home building purposes, and since its organization it has made close to 100 loans, of which 90 per cent have been applied to the building of homes in Glendale, according to Charles N. Elder, manager and secretary. These loans are made on long time repayment terms that permit the borrower to repay them on the same basis as if he had continued to pay rent, while allowing him to acquire a home of his own.

Strong Corporation

The firm is capitalized at $1,000,000, with assets of $250,000, and its operations are under the supervision of the state. The reports of its officials show that its growth has been steady since its inception and the influence it is exercising in home building projects in the city has already made itself felt as a vital factor in Glendale's development.

The officers of the corporation are Dan Campbell, president; W. W. Lee, vice president; Chas. N. Elder, secretary; R. F. Kitterman, treasurer; W. S. Perrin, Roy L. Kent, E. C. Pendroy, directors; W. E. Evans, attorney. The security committee consists of Arthur Campbell, J. R. Bentley and T. A. Wright, and the finance committee includes Ezra Parker, J. B. Whitaker and Jesse E. Smith.

SUCKER LIST STAYS

AKRON, Ohio, Aug. 2.—"The slicker will get you if you don't watch out," is the warning sent out by the Akron Better Business Association this week. Investigation by the commission has shown that the "sucker list" is never destroyed, and it is only after years of refusal to bite the second time that names are canceled.

WILLYS SECURES CONTROL OF CO.

Federal Court's Decision Is Regarded as Tribute to Manufacturer

Permanent control of the The Willys-Overland company, as represented by the block 739,000 shares of common stock held by the Willys corporation, definitely passed into the hands of John N. Willys and his friends this week through the decision of Judge Knox in the federal district court at Buffalo.

This large block of common stock, for which several bids were entertained by the court, originally belonged to John N. Willys, who built up the Willys-Overland company. It was turned over to the Willys corporation, organized by him in 1918 as one of the assets of that corporation.

When the affairs of the Willys corporation, after the result of the depression following the war, became such that a receivership was made necessary in order to liquidate the assets of the corporation and satisfy the creditors. Mr. Willys took the firm stand that the first preferred stockholders of the Willys corporation should, in so far as possible, be saved from loss of their investment. Those stockholders, numbering about 6,000, held $15,000,000 par value first preferred Willys corporation stock. The majority of the second preferred stock and of the common stock was held by Mr. Willys.

Meet Obligations

Since the appointment of the receiver approximately 78 per cent of the claims against the Willys corporation have been met. Approximately $2,600,000 in cash was in the treasury together with additional assets, which prior to the decision of Judge Knox, includes the Willys-Overland common stock, and other securities valued at approximately $1,000,000.

Mr. Willys consistently opposed the acceptance of any bid for the common stock held by Willys corporation which did not carry with it protection of the interests of the first preferred stockholders of that corporation, and it was within the last two or three weeks that a plan was presented by Thomas A. Tracy, representing Toledo interests, which made provision for the reimbursement of the first preferred stockholders of the Willys corporation. This plan met with the approval of Mr. Willys and also of the counsel for the first preferred stockholders of the Willys corporation. It involved the payment of $3,000,000 cash for the 739,000 shares, plus a guarantee of $500,000 additional in the event that the total cash received by the receiver for the Willys corporation should not prove to be sufficient to meet all creditors' claims. It also involved a gift to the first preferred stockholders committee of 169,000 shares of the Willys-Overland common stock. In the event that these shares should return to par their value would be increased.

Business Increases

The come-back of the Willys-Overland during the past few months is the talk of the entire industry. Willys-Overland production has climbed back to second place among all the automobile members of the Chamber of Commerce from fourteenth place—last highest point in the history of the company. Production and earnings for the six months of 1923 are in excess of any previous six months' period. Dealers have been almost doubled in number. Overhead cost has been cut to a lower figure than ever before in the history of the company. The product has reached a higher standing with the public than ever before, and even at this period, when a seasonable lull is generally expected, the demand for Willys-Overland cars is greater than ever at any time this year.

tiffs are acting outside the law; but if they are within the Vrooman law, then the law is inadequate for the defence of the people of California, and it must be amended to make it adequate.

"Morally, I contend that no such high-handed, unscrupulous methods must go unchallenged.

"And practically, everyone involved in this matter, straight through, must be notified that Glendale does not propose to stand for such rough-shod practices."

PREDICTS EARLY START ON DEPOT

S. P. Official Says Glendale Station Will Be Used By Many Travelers

An early start on the work of building the new Southern Pacific station in Glendale is predicted in a letter that has been received by W. L. Twining, chairman of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce Advertising committee, from F. S. McGinnis, assistant passenger traffic manager of the Southern Pacific company, in answer to a request for definite information on the subject submitted by the committee.

Mr. McGinnis' letter follows:

SOUTHERN PACIFIC CO.
Pacific System—Southern Dist.
Los Angeles, Cal.,
July 28, 1923.

Mr. W. L. Twining, Chairman, Advertising Committee, C. of C., Glendale, Cal.

Dear Mr. Twining:

Referring to your request for information concerning the Southern Pacific's modern new passenger station in Glendale:

Plans have been approved and, no doubt, work will be undertaken in the near future. This station will serve not only the residents of Glendale, but will also be an advantage to passengers traveling between Hollywood, Eagle Rock, Pasadena and points north. Its location near several well-paved boulevards will undoubtedly encourage persons to board and leave the trains at Glendale, as by so doing they will be able to save considerable time.

Praises Advertising

Incidentally, I noticed your first ad in a Los Angeles morning paper Friday. In my opinion, the type of community advertising which your chamber is carrying will bring definite results. You are, indeed, fortunate in having an experienced advertising man to prepare the copy. If only one city is to be chosen in which to carry such advertising, you have picked the proper one, as it is a fact that the majority of eastern homeseekers coming to southern California come to Los Angeles first and then radiate from here.

Wishing you every success, I am, Yours sincerely,

(Signed) F. S. McGINNIS,
Assistant Passenger Traffic Manager.

NEW BUICK HITS AUTOISTS' FANCY

Hundreds Visit Showrooms To Inspect New Model For Coming Season

The new model of the 1924 Buick touring car that was received yesterday by Tanner & Hall of 237 South Brand boulevard, local distributors, has been causing a genuine sensation not only among motorists in general, but also among the Glendale dealers, every one of whom has pronounced it, in the language of the craft, a "classy job."

Word of its arrival, a day ahead of time, brought several hundred people to the Tanner & Hall showrooms last night to inspect the new model, which is one of the most striking automobiles ever displayed in Glendale.

The big feature of the new car is the four-wheel brakes that are to be a part of both the fours and sixes in the 1924 list of fourteen separate models, and demonstrations that have been made since the delivery of the car yesterday have proven the efficacy of this new product of the Buick engineers.

Style Is Changed

In appearance the 1924 Buick differs materially from anything that the firm has produced in the past. Long, sweeping lines that lend a dashing look to the car, a new design in the radiator, a higher hood, and the incorporation of many new engineering and refining features make the Buick stand out in any company, and Ray L. Galvin, sales manager for Tanner & Hall, is taking a genuine pride in demonstrating the car for the hundreds of motorists and dealers who have called to inspect it.

An announcement of the entire line, together with the prices that will prevail, will be made immediately, and preparations are being made at the Tanner & Hall agency to handle a record volume of trade as soon as the deliveries begin on the 1924 models.

Mariner Leading in Honolulu Yacht Race

HONOLULU, Aug. 2.—Navy seaplanes returning here report the yacht Mariner leading in the Santa Barbara-Honolulu Yacht race. She is expected off Diamond Head shortly. The other entrants have not been sighted. Six yachts left Santa Barbara July 18 on the longest sailing race in yachting history. Two were forced to put back by accidents. The Mariner is the L. R. Norris entry of the San Francisco Yacht Club.

BIG BOOZE SEIZURE

SPOKANE, Aug. 2.—Fifteen thousand cases of choice wines, whiskies and gin were seized aboard Spokane & International Railway passenger train at Bonners Ferry, Ida., last night, by federal officers. Members of the train crew opposed the search. No arrests were made.

GLENDALE, LOS ANGELES COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 2, 1923

C. OF C. OFFICIALS PRAISE BOOKLET

Artistic Presentation of Advantages of Glendale Is Shown in Pages

"Glendale, the fastest growing city in America," is to be presented to residents of the United States in an artistic booklet arranged by the Glendale Chamber of Commerce and printed in the job department of The Glendale Evening News office under the able direction of D. R. Patterson.

The appearance of the Glendale booklet has been anxiously awaited by officials of the Chamber of Commerce and other Glendalians, and great pleasure in its success was voiced Tuesday night when copies were distributed at the meeting of the chamber officials.

Shading the foreground of the artistic cover is a graceful eucalyptus tree, in whose shade the reader seems to stand as he gazes out on the "Green Verdugo Hills" with the city of Glendale stretching out across the valley. The colors used in this picture are harmonizing shades of green, gray and blue. In a small white shield figure on the page is the slogan, "The Fastest Growing City in America."

McGroarty's Foreword

Within the cover one is greeted with a foreword by John Steven McGroarty, "Scribe of the Green Verdugo Hills," who ends with the thought, "I commend to the world this bright little story of a happy city."

There follow pages tastefully rotten up to present the beauties and charms of Glendale in picture and story. Churches, public buildings, streets, homes and scenery are pictured and written about, as well as business progress and possibilities.

In closing there is a map of Los Angeles and surrounding territory, showing the relation of Glendale in relation to the neighboring cities. On the final page are "Glendale Facts," concluding a book that is of interest to both Glendalian and stranger.

Methodist Church to Greet Pastor Again

Members of the First Methodist church are looking forward to welcoming back into the pulpit next Sunday their pastor, Dr. Henry I. Rasmus, who with Mrs. Rasmus and his sister, Mrs. Lena Brandbury of 804 East Acacia avenue, just returned from a motor trip north covering 4036 miles.

"It was a wonderful trip," says Dr. Rasmus. "We motored north over the Ridge route, through Sacramento and over the Siskiyou mountain highway into Oregon.

"At Portland we visited with my brother, Prof. William M. Rasmus, and then went on to Spokane, Wash., to see our daughter, Mrs. Earl Z. Smith.

"I am very loyal to California and its beauty, but the country in these two northern states is superb and the highways wonderful.

"We enjoyed fine weather, except on the Siskiyou mountain highway, where we encountered severe rain storm.

"It was indeed a fine summer trip and I have returned refreshed to take up the duties of my pastorate in Glendale."

CUT GAS RATE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—A 5 per cent reduction was ordered by the State Railroad Commission today in the natural gas rates of the Southern Counties Gas Company, serving Long Beach, Wilmington, San Pedro, Seal Beach and contiguous unincorporated territory.

More Education Is War Leader's Plan

GEN. FRANSISCO SERRANO

General Francisco Serrano, minister of war in the Mexican cabinet, is now on a tour of the United States. He says he is centering his efforts, however, in studying educational methods and plans to reduce the Mexican army and use the money thus saved in increasing educational facilities in Mexico.

SCHOOL PERMIT BOOSTS TOTALS

Addition to Doran School to Cost $27,085 Increases August Figures

Permit for the new four-room unit of the Doran school was taken out this morning by Contractor Elmer Elliott of 612 East Elk avenue, who announced that it would cost $27,085. He has commenced the work of pouring the concrete already and will start the brick work on the walls in a few days. He estimates that the job will be completed in about eighty days.

August is only one day old yet it has $32,325 worth of building permits to its credit. This sum increased the total for the year, to date, to $5,766,296.

Permits issued since the first of the month include the following:

Board of Education, new unit, Doran school	$ 27,085
W. E. Jernegan, 4 rooms and garage, 713 East California avenue	2,800
L. H. Wilson, 3 rooms, 435 West Acacia avenue	2,000
Lulu F. Paugh, garage, 1530 Wabassa way	250
H. G. McDougall, garage, 1347 Alameda street	190

WANT MORE MONEY

COLOGNE, Aug. 2.—The printers of the city went on strike, demanding 2,500,000 marks weekly instead of the present scale of 110,000, which is hardly enough to buy a week's supply of potatoes for a single family.

DIE IN COKE FIRE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 2.—Three men were burned to death and three others are missing in a fire which swept the Greenfield avenue plant of the Milwaukee Coke and Gas Company here.

P.-T. A. HEADS TO PRESIDE AT CLUB

Parliamentary Law Club to Invite Cooperation of School Leaders

An interesting plan now in progress at the weekly meetings of the Women's Parliamentay Law club, is to have the president of some one of the various Parent-Teacher associations preside over the meeting. This was the idea of Mrs. C. H. Whitney, president of the club, and also president of the Glendale High School Parent-Teacher association.

"It seemed of great value to me," says Mrs. Whitney, "and rather than get all the benefit myself, I decided that I would appoint a different leader at each meeting. This gives the presidents of the various organizations splendid training in parliamentary law procedure.

"Of course much of the interest and success of the club is due to Mrs. Harry Greenwalt, who, through her thorough study and knowledge of parliamentary law, is unusually well qualified to instruct the club members."

At the club tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the public library Mrs. O. H. Stradeling, president of the Glendale Avenue Intermediate Parent-Teacher association, will preside. Mrs. Greenwalt will conduct drill and study of privileged motions.

All Glendale women interested in parliamentary law are cordially invited to attend the club meetings.

Glendale Cat Club Considers Show

Tentative plans for a big fall show are being considered by the Glendale Cat club, according to reports from the meeting last night of the club's show committee. Members of the committee meeting were Dr. Libbie Ashcroft, Mrs. B. O. Holbrook, Mrs. B. V. Brasher, Miss Clarabel Grimm and Mrs. F. S. Card.

It is hoped that enough money can be raised to bring a nationally known judge from New York for the show.

Further plans for the show will be made at a meeting Monday night at the home of Dr. Ashcroft at 1159 Melrose avenue.

Burbank and Pasadena Cars Crash on Brand

Brand boulevard and Colorado street was the scene of a collision about 7 o'clock last night. One automobile was driven by Bert Mortimer of Burbank and the other by Arthur E. Peirce of Pasadena.

"I was in the intersection," said Mortimer, "and glanced to left to see if car was near. I was going to turn. He shot in front of me from right. Impossible for me to stop in time. I was making fifteen miles per hour."

Damage to Peirce's machine amounted to a dented left rear fender, damage to both rear wheels, and possible damage to differential and rear axle.

TUMBLE FROM CLIFF

PASADENA, Aug. 2.—M. G. McNiff, a member of a county surveying party working in the mountains, narrowly escaped death when he and his horse fell off a steep cliff near Switzer's Camp and lodged in brush on the mountain side, many feet below. McNiff was being brought to Pasadena for treatment, one of his feet having been injured.

Harrower, Honored Guest At Exchange Club Lunch, Tells Of European Trip

EXCHANGEITE Henry R. Harrower of 1510 East Broadway was the guest of honor yesterday noon in the Tuesday Afternoon Clubhouse at the weekly luncheon of the Glendale Exchange club. Dr. Harrower, who is the founder of the Harrower Laboratory at 920 East Broadway, was one of the founders of the local club. He returned recently from an extended sojourn in Europe and described some of his observations in Germany.

Capt. D. Ripley Jackson of 1800 South Brand boulevard, who presided, extended a welcome to Exchangettes present. He complied with the request of R. W. Jessup of 5430 Phyllis street to sing a solo and sang "Sunrise and You." By special request of R. E. Johnson of 444 South San Fernando road Dr. Harrower sang "A Wee Deoch and Doris." Mike Kaufman of Hollywood accompanied both solos.

The special program for the occasion consisted of a musical act entitled "Gone Are the Days." This was put on by Miss Sayre of 914 South Central avenue and her sister, Mrs. Ruth Olshausen, of 530 North Adams street, who are known professionally as "The Sayre Sisters." They were attired in southern costumes and sang a medley of popular old-time southern airs. Miss May Orcutt of 123 West Dryden street played the accompaniment upon a melodeon. Dr. Warren Z. Newton of 121 North Brand boulevard arranged the program.

Gift For Baby

Dr. James A. Belyea of 111 East Broadway was congratulated upon the arrival of a daughter. She was formally accepted into the club as its youngest Exchangette. A baby's silver drinking cup was presented to her daddy in her behalf. This was secured from the Lewis Jewelry Company at 135 North Brand boulevard, through Exchangeite F. C. Butler. It bears the Exchange club emblem and was engraved with her name, Nancy Stebbins Belyea. Dr. Belyea was so taken by surprise at the presentation of the gift that he pretended to forget his daughter's name. Accordingly, he was requested to contribute to "the kitty." This he did amid some hilarity.

Jesse E. Smith of 651 North Central avenue attended the luncheon as president of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

"The ordinary citizen of Germany is the victim of circumstances," remarked Dr. Harrower. "Just as he was victimized during the war by the kaiser, so now he is victimized by the big moneyed men. Somebody is getting rich and somebody is crooked, and, if you want my candid opinion, I think it is the people who are trying to cheat the French."

Denounced Baldwin

English objection to the occupation of the Ruhr, according to Dr. Harrower, is due to interference with commerce between England and Germany. He denounced Premier Stanley Baldwin's attitude and commended the French for attempting to get some definite assurance that Germany will live up to her treaty obligations.

One thousand mark notes were placed at each plate as souvenirs. These were originally worth $200 but are now practically worthless. Dr. Harrower said so much money has been printed in Germany that he doubted if any nation, not excluding the United States, could possibly ever redeem it.

Unemployment does not exist in Germany, in the opinion of Dr. Harrower. He stated that everybody was occupied and busy. Then he added that wages are so low that people are in constant fear lest their clothes wear out. He stated that an ordinary suit of clothes for a man cannot be obtained for much less than a year's wages. He mentioned one case in which a trained nurse could not make new garments for herself, although she had the goods, because the cost of a spool of thread was more than her entire monthly salary.

Prices Are Low

Prices of merchandise are ridiculously low in Germany. For $125 Dr. Harrower was able to purchase enough cloth to make uniforms for about forty nurses at a hospital where he visited. He expressed a wish that a donation might be sent to this institution and a collection was made of $13.

Guests at the luncheon were Mrs. Arthur H. Dibbern, Mrs. Theodore Pinther of San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Daniels and W. D. King. Others present included the following: Mr. and Mrs. D. Ripley Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Jessup, Mr. and Mrs. James Howarth, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Whitaker, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Elwood, Dr. and Mrs. Warren Z. Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hill, Mr. and Mrs. George H. King, Peter Niese, James F. Bell, B. L. Cline, G. C. McConnell, J. C. May, Fred Hoyt, George A. Thomas, R. E. Johnston, Marvin Smith, E. B. Sutton and Dr. Jim Belyea.

Plans to Quit, So Case Is Dismissed

R. B. Sims of 426 Ivy street was arrested at 4 p. m. yesterday charged with failure to pay the quarterly license which was due June 30 for the operation of his private patrol. When Judge F. H. Lowe was informed that Mr. Sims intends to go out of business, the case was dismissed.

The most plausible excuse is accepted with a tinge of doubt.

KILL FIRST DEER OF 1923 SEASON

Glendale Hunter Bags Buck In Ventura County in Record Time

The first deer of the open season in Ventura county was brought back yesterday afternoon by J. C. Reinhard and son James, of 543 West Glenwood road, after what is probably one of the swiftest hunting trips ever made from this city.

They set out shortly after midnight, Wednesday morning, arrived at Frazier mountain, near Tejon, before dawn, got a two-point buck at 6 o'clock—and arrived home at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Reinhard states that they had not intended to break any records but when they got the deer, at the very outset of the trip, they thought they would turn around and come back to Glendale with their prize, perhaps to set out again later.

BICYCLES STOLEN

The theft of two bicycles was reported yesterday to the police department. A blue double-frame Roamer was the property of C. E. Moser of 611 East Acacia avenue and a blue and white bicycle belonged to Richard Ambrose of 644 North Pacific avenue.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

A minor operation was performed upon Miss Roma Staub, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Staub of 324 Hawthorne street, this morning at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

AUXILIARY HAS LARGE MEETING

Patriotic Gathering Takes Place Last Night; New Officers in Chairs

Among Glendale's active patriotic organizations are the local camp of Spanish War Veterans and the women's Auxiliary, and last night over 150 members and guests met in the K. P. hall, on South Brand boulevard, for special gathering of the Women's Auxiliary.

Large delegations were present from the Admiral Glass and Roosevelt auxiliaries, who witnessed and participated in the initiatory and installation ceremonies.

Opening the meeting, five candidates were initiated by Mrs. Anna C. Jessmier, department president, and her staff. Those received into the Auxiliary were Miss Anna Pike, Miss Marion Hill, Mrs. Sherrod, Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. Stowe.

The meeting was then opened and the veterans were admitted for the installation of Mrs. Mary R. Hill as president, and Mrs. Fred Butler as senior vice-president.

Impromptu Addresses

Later there were impromptu addresses by E. L. Hill, department patriotic instructor, from Northern California; Dr. W. C. Mabry, commander of the Glendale camp; W. H. Reeves, past commander of the Glendale camp, and Mrs. Bertha Martens of Los Angeles, department treasurer.

Music, dances and refreshments were enjoyed later in the evening.

The Auxiliary now has more than forty members, and its growth is keeping step with the growth of the camp.

Members of the committee arranging the affair last night were Mrs. Alberta C. Merrihew, Mrs. Mary R. Hill and Mrs. Bessie M. Mabry.

Escapes Bad Hurts In Auto Accident

Mrs. Mable Hilton of Burbank was brought to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital last night following an automobile accident in Hollywood. It was found that she had no broken bones and only bruises.

Got Any Bedbugs? Sell 'Em For Cash

DR. WALTER S. ABBOTT

Dr. Walter S. Abbott, head of the insecticide board of the department of agriculture has advertised for 1200 bedbugs to be paid for. Boarding house keepers ought to be able to cash in with specimens of all breeds, shapes, sizes and ages.

Additional Patron Members for Club

Additional patron members of the Glendale Music club have just been announced by Mrs. Warren Roberts, club treasurer. The list, as announced by Mrs. Roberts, includes:

Mrs. Eugene Murrman, Harry Girard, Mrs. Raymond Wolcott, Mrs. Harry V. Brown, Mrs. Harry A. James, J. E. Phillips, Mrs. J. Will Johnson, Malcolm MacLennan, Mrs. Lillian Ballagh, Mrs. Frank C. Ayars, J. Herbert Smith, Francis J. W. Henry, A. N. Carson, Mrs. Charles A. Barker, Mrs. Richard Dewey, Mrs. Lillian Smits, Mrs. Evelyn M. Labadie, A. T. Cowan, Mrs. Martha S. Russell, Mrs. F. S. Balthis, H. E. Cavanah and A. L. Baird.

MINOR OPERATION

A minor operation was performed upon Mrs. W. E. Sauter of 118 East Chestnut street this morning at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

PLAYGROUND AT PACIFIC SCHOOL

T. F. McMaster in Charge of District; Tennis Match Entries Come in

T. F. McMaster, now director of the Central avenue playground, is to be put in charge of the Pacific avenue grounds, which will be opened up for the balance of the summer, to give the children of that district an opportunity to enjoy these facilities.

This announcement is made by R. Ernest Tucker, executive secretary of the local Community Service organization, who states that the Central avenue grounds will be closed when the Pacific avenue grounds are opened.

The Cerritos avenue grounds will remain open, according to Mr. Tucker, as will the Glendale Union High school grounds. The object in making the shift was part of a general plan to learn just where lies the greatest need for summer playgrounds, so that next summer they may be conducted on a basis of maximum service.

Tennis Contests

Reporting on the forthcoming tennis matches, Mr. Tucker states that entries are coming in rapidly. Of the 110 who have signed up as favoring tennis, it is expected that a large number will participate in the tournaments.

As soon as some idea can be obtained of how many will want to participate and what hours will be the most convenient, William Bode, chairman of the tennis committee of Community Service, will prepare a schedule of games.

All who are desirous of entering these tournaments are urged to hand in their names at once, either to Mr. Tucker, at 150 South Brand boulevard, or Mr. Bode, at 126 South Brand boulevard.

Matrimony and a Gamble

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster

Lee Donier was chunky and thoughtful, a man who walked softly and carried with him always the air of one whose opinion was worth while. It was largely with his opinions he made his living, for Lee published predictions on horse races, and there were men who were wise, or foolish, enough to guide their actions by his word.

It is only occasionally a man of particular calling lives up to the picture fiction has given him. Lee was as far removed from the accepted character of the race-track tipster as is a frock coat from a bellboy. Except in his professional hours, he gave the horses no thought, and as a gambler he did not so much as play a penny machine for matches. He was a businessman and a lover.

Constance and Lee had talked it over. They were certain they could afford a bungalow on the outskirts and, with economy, could start in as husband and wife with no great dread of landlords or rent day. They would be married in the spring, Constance said, and she knew which color curtains she would have in each room. Lee was equally confident, but he held to a secret hope there would be enough money for a larger house and nearer town.

"If those horses will only run according to dope," he told himself, "I'll get a reputation, and that means more money." Every day he made his predictions and watched the races with as much interest as did any man who had wagered his last cent. Not once did he place a bet.

"Why should I risk my money?" he asked Constance one evening when she had expressed a fear he might take to betting. "You see, picking a winner out of a bunch of horses is something like trying to draw the ace from a pack. A man may have record books, theories and reports from the stables, but that won't prevent the wrong horse from sticking its nose in the flower shoe. You needn't worry. Why, any time I'd bet I'd feel like I was putting up a stove or dining room table against a wild guess. It is my theory that even the man who predicts a warm winter orders coal."

For all of that Lee dreamed of the larger house. There was nothing too good for Constance, he thought, and a lucky turn might make it possible. He announced probable winners each day, and when they came in first reflected that had he staked his money he would be on the way to wealth. Continued successes tempted him, but always he thought of Constance and the uncertainties of speculation.

A surprise came to Lee one day near the end of the season with a check for $1000 from a group of men who had profited by his knowledge and the average accuracy of his predictions. It was the gamblers' way of showing appreciation, and, if the money were tainted, it is to be recorded Lee never once thought of soap or water, but placed it in the bank. He decided not to tell Constance.

When a man picks so many winners something happens to his will and his sense of proportion. Lee saw himself as the expert. He looked at his bank book and that $1000 entry and thought of the house he would buy. The records encouraged him to the belief Rosa Nancy could not fail to win the feature race. He put her first on his list and backed his guess with the thousand dollars. The man who had made the race-track his business and profession placed his first bet at the rail as nervous as a boy.

That night Lee called on Constance. "The season is over," he said, "and there is a fellow who has fixed it for me to get a job with the city. I'm going to quit this other line and we can get married and go live in that bungalow."

"No wedding present and no house could make me happier than to know you are going to work at a regular job," Constance told him. We'll be married next week."

Lee walked home with his hands thrust deep in his pockets. In his heart and mind were conflicting emotions. It would be difficult to give up this old job, and it was hard to give up the dream of the large house. But when he thought of Constance and her happiness, he smiled. "All the same," he said to himself as he voiced his last regret, "if Rosa Nancy had won we'd been sitting easy."

Daily Fashion Hint

Prepared Especially for The Glendale Evening News

SIMPLICITY CHARACTERIZES THESE MODES

Both practical and youthful is the frock of Indo-Chinese blue cotton crepe to the left, with bow of radium silk oddly tied at the right side. The edges of the panels are picoted and the collar is slashed and turned down in the approved envelope style. Tiny gros grain ribbon bows hold the sleeves together where they are slashed on the upper side of the arms. Medium size requires 6 yards 36-inch material.

A gingham, a chambray, voile or silk would be attractive in the next model. If preferred, the deep collar and cuffs could be of contrasting material. The panels are trimmed with pockets, while the attached four-piece gathered skirt is laid in plaits each side of the front in box-plait effect. Medium size requires 4¾ yards 36-inch material.

First Model—Pictorial Review Dress No. 1582. Sizes, 14 to 20 years. Price, 35 cents.

Second Model—Dress No. 1583. Sizes, 14 to 20 years. Price, 35 cents.

Beauty Chats

EDNA KENT FORBES

THE MEDICINE AND BEAUTY CABINETS

The medicine cabinet and the beauty cabinet overlap in many ways, showing how closely good looks are to good health. In trying to give a brief list of essentials for each, I find that many articles should be in both.

Peroxide of hydrogen, for instance, is invaluable as a skin bleach, as a mouth wash, and a means of whitening the teeth, as a throat gargle, as a means of brightening light hair, as a means of cleaning the scalp. Oh, yes, it is splendid for that, especially in cases of oily dandruff or where the head has been exposed to infection—through using strange combs and brushes, for instance. But it has dangers. Too much or too frequent use will yellow the hair. It should be used now and then, diluted half with water, rubbed on generously before the shampoo, and then washed off immediately.

Peroxide should be used to whiten the upper lip if a growth of dark fuzz shows on it. It will bleach these tiny hairs so they are not noticeable and it will discourage their growth. Also it is good to use on cuts to prevent infection.

I might add that a bottle of colorless, tasteless oil, white mineral oil, can go in either the beauty or the medicine cabinet. Some people must take this almost daily to keep the system clear and the skin fine grained and free of blemishes; some need it only occasionally. In any case, this or some other mild laxative must usually be kept handy if the complexion is to be white, healthy in hue and attractive.

Another item for both cabinets is petroleum jelly, which has a dozen or more medical uses and which is the best thing I know of for rubbing around the nails at night to keep them young, and to keep the cuticle smooth. There is also bicarbonate of soda. A little may be used in the water when rinsing oily hair. It's a mouth wash and a medicine too.

Jeanette and Constant Reader: At twenty-five years of age, height five feet five inches, weight is normal at 125 pounds. The girl of eighteen, with height five feet six inches, should weigh between 120 and 125 pounds. To gain in weight, drink plenty of milk or eat plentifully of any other nourishing light food.

N. E. C. and M. S.: A great deal may be done toward filling out the bust if deep breathing is practised and all the muscles of the chest are exercised healthfully. Much of this exercising may be effected by taking the rotary movements with the arms. A light massage, using cocoa butter with this, will help to fatten.

Song-writer: You can obtain the names of any of the publishers from the published sheets of music.

Betty: Your trouble is a run-down system from overwork. Consult your physician about your condition, and I am sure that his suggestions will open up a way for you to be relieved of the hardest of this toil, while all the time he would be building you up so your cheeks would fill out like the other girls of sixteen years.

Tomorrow—Cold Creams.

This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Several of my readers have requested directions for crocheting a powder puff bag. The following one is oriental in color and would make a dainty birthday or Christmas gift:

Crocheted Oriental Puff Bag: Colors are jade green, old blue, gray, old rose and black. One spool of each of these five colors is needed, the silk being ordinary knitting and crochet silk. Buy also a steel crochet hook number 10. Ch. 3 with old blue and join for ring. First row: Ten d. c. into ring. Join at end of each round. Second row: Two s. c. in each d. with old rose. Third row: Ch. 3 at beginning of every round with old rose, take up double stitch all the time. Fourth row: One d. c. in each double of row below with black. Fifth row: One s. c. in first 2 s. c., in 2nd repeat with old rose. Sixth row: D. c. in each st. with jade green. Seventh row: One s. c. in first and second, 2 s. c. in third with old rose. Repeat. Eighth row: One d. c. in each with gray. Ninth row: One s. c. in 3, w. s. c. in fourth with old rose. Tenth row: One d. c. in each with old blue. Eleventh row: One s. c. in every stitch. Twelfth row: Two d. c. in each st. with old blue. Thirteenth row: Ch. 3, 3 d. c. in same place, skip 2 s. c. in next, repeat with black. Fourteenth row: Turn, catch gray with s. c. in top of ch. 3, 3 d. c. around chain, repeat. Fifteenth row: Turn same as 4th, with black. Sixteenth row: One s. c. in ch. 3, 2 d. c. in s. c. of last round with gray. Seventeenth row: Turn, 1 d. c. in each stitch with old rose. Eighteenth row: D. c. in each st. with old blue. Nineteenth row: Same as the eighteenth row. Twentieth row: Alternately 4 d. c. of old rose and jade-green. Twenty-first row: Same as twentieth row, only reverse the colors. Twenty-second and twenty-third rows: Same as twentieth and twenty-first rows. Twenty-fourth rows: D. c. all around with jade-green. Twenty-fifth row: Same, with old blue. Twenty-sixth row: Same with gray. Twenty-seventh row: Same with old rose. Twenty-eighth, twenty-ninth, thirtieth and thirty-first rows: Same as fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth rows. Thirty-second row: D. c. with gray. Thirty-third row: D. c. with old rose. Thirty-fourth row: Ch. 6, skip 2 s. c. in third, repeat with old blue. Thirty-fifth row: Ch. 6, s. c. in next loop, repeat with jade-green. Thirty-sixth row: Same with gray. Thirty-seventh row: Same with black. Thirty-eighth row: Five ch., 1 s. c. in loop with jade-green. Thirty-ninth row: Two ch., s. c. in loop with old blue. Fortieth row: Beading for draw-string: Ch. 4 in first loop, 1 s. c. in same place, ch. 1, 2 s. c. in each loop of two with old rose. Finish with scalloping in jade, crochet a draw-string, line with old blue silk and catch a circle of pasteboard in bottom of bag under lining.

Side Talks

by Ruth Cameron

TAKING TURNS

Before he became too much interested in affairs of other worlds to think about things mundane, A. Conan Doyle wrote a set of maxims for the married. They are 15 and all excellent. The one I like best is this:

"Never both be cross at the same time. Wait your turn."

We have exactly that arrangement in our family.

Only we put it differently. One of us says: "I am pudgy this morning. Look out for me."

And the other tries to heed the warning.

You May Use It

Pudgy is an invented word in this particular meaning, patented by our family (but we hereby offer to let any Reader Friend in good standing use it). The dictionary gives it the meaning of short and fat or sturdy. I appeal to you if our meaning of irascible, and cranky isn't much more what the word actually sounds like.

A member of our family calls himself pudgy when he is in that frame of mind that every little thing irritates him and annoys him and he doesn't feel fit for human consumption.

The rest of the family are supposed, when this announcement has been made, to let him alone as much as possible, and above all things to avoid stepping on pet corns. No delicate subjects are brought up at this time. Issues that always bring trouble are carefully kept away from.

Most of the big upsets in married life come when trying subjects are brought up at the wrong time.

Kid Glove Subjects

Between every couple (except those incredible and annoying people who insist that they never have had a disagreement or a cross word in all their married life) there are certain subjects that have to be handled with gloves. Even when these subjects come up in the most smiling weather, clouds are apt to gather very rapidly and the barometer to fall with startling suddenness. Sometimes big things, sometimes little things. The way his mother wants to manage the house when she visits them; her brother-in-law's conduct in the matter of that business deal; the question as to whether she does or doesn't coddle the children too much; the eternal subject of the household bills; the way she interrupted him that time when he was telling a story; the amount of money he spends for tobacco. In every family they are different as to detail and in every family they are intrinsically the same.

If these matters are brought up at a time when either of the parties is pudgy, what chance is there to avoid a quarrel? Almost none.

Of course, one might argue that, if announcing that one is pudgy means that one has special consideration for the day, some member of the family will abuse the privilege. That doesn't happen. For two reasons: In the first place it is a matter of honor not to. In the second place if anyone did, he would soon wear the privilege out and it just wouldn't work for him.

So we each have our turns at being pudgy and at trying to keep things smooth when some other member is pudgy.

Don't you think it is a good scheme?

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Genevieve—If you don't reduce too rapidly and combine some vigorous exercises with your diet, you will not become flabby. I am not sure that I emphasize exercise sufficiently. It is highly important and should always be combined with the reducing diet, unless there are some reasons against it. Sometimes when one is extremely overweight, it is best to reduce somewhat before beginning the exercises.

Even in heart disease, the physicians who specialize in that disorder advise what they call graduated exercises, such as walking up hill for a short distance and gradually increasing the distance.

The newspapers and magazines very often have articles on exercises. Practically everybody knows what the setting-up exercises are. The more you can do of these the better it will be for you, but at least fifteen minutes a day should be devoted to some good exercises — bending and twisting and turning and kicking and so forth, so that every organ as well as every muscle in the body is exercised. Exercise quickens circulation, quickens elimination, helps the body to oxidize, helps digestion, helps form new blood, stimulates the internal secretions, and has other beneficial effects too numerous to mention.

Don't reduce more than two pounds a week after the first week. The first week you may reduce from five to ten pounds if you go on the three-day liquid diet to start, not having more than 500-600 calories a day. Combine exercise with your diet, reduce gradually, and you will not be flabby.

Mrs. R.—High blood pressure may be due to a number of causes. To over-eating in general, or excessive amounts of salt and proteins, or stimulants; to over mental excitement and worry, etc. We have an article on the subject that you may have which goes into the subject more fully.

A chronic tired feeling may be due to anemia, or to chronic toxemia from improper diet, or to chronic disease.

The foods which contain iron in high percentages are spinach, egg yolks, string beans, carrots, cabbage, lean meat, whole wheat, dates, figs and raisins.

Mrs. W.—Yes, I think there is a good deal of good in Coueism, or in any system of mental healing. There is no doubt at all that the state of mind has a powerful influence on the body, nor is there any doubt that the state of the body has a powerful influence on the state of mind.

The chief thing in taking advantage of the good points in any mental healing system is to remember not to neglect the physical means of remedying the disease conditions. No matter how much you reiterate "Day by day in every way I am getting better and better," unless you actually do something besides thinking, you are not going to accomplish much, if anything. If you are not getting the elements in your diet that you need, all the mental formulae invented will not supply them. I am terribly afraid of Coueism and other mental stunts that make one neglect early signs of cancer, for example, when proper physical stunts will be curative.

You say your husband lets his work worry him and work seems to be his one aim in life. He feels he has no time to go to any places of amusement, etc.

If he continues this attitude, tell him he will go to some place sooner or later, and that may not be a place of amusement, either.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a man of twenty-nine and for two years I have been "batching it." My mother was an invalid for some time before she died and so my sister moved in the house next door. At present I am keeping up my mother's home, because it seems to me I can't give it up. Of course if it were not for my sister who looks after the cleaning woman and other little things, I could never go on living as I do.

I do almost all of my own cooking. My sister brings over food sometimes and has me at her house for dinner as often as I want to go, but I do not like to impose myself on her good nature and so I rarely go.

You probably wonder why I do not marry, a thing which all of my friends wonder. Every week I am the victim of some match-making scheme, but unfortunately I cannot interest myself in the girls I meet. There are three girls who have been friends of mine for a number of years and I go to see them occasionally. If I were to marry I should choose one of the three, but I cannot get to the point of proposing, because I know very well I am not in love.

Would you advise me to marry so that I will have someone to keep house for me and cook, or would you advise me to wait for love? Sometimes I give up hope and think love will never come.

ERNEST B.

You could hire a housekeeper to keep house and cook meals, and that is what I would advise you to do instead of marrying someone to fill that need in your life. By all means wait for love, because that is the only good reason for marriage.

Try not to tear every girl you meet to pieces. Probably your failing is being too critical. You look for faults instead of virtues. Perhaps it has not occurred to you that you have failings, too, and you have no right to expect perfection in a wife.

Dear Mrs. Thompson. How often would you advise a girl to let a young man come to see her? I am going with a young man who would like to come every night, and my father objects. This boy says that he has never had a girl before who would let him come, and if I won't he will spend the evenings I won't give him with someone else. My father says that he doesn't like his attitude and he would be perfectly satisfied if he stayed away altogether. I care a lot for him and it would hurt my feelings to anger him so he would not come any more.

TESIE.

Your father is right in forbidding the young man to come to see you every night. If he comes two, or possibly three times a week that is ample. His attitude is not one to be admired, because a young man with so few interests in life that he has to spend all of his evenings in the company of some girl has not a whole lot to him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am engaged to be married. A short time ago my fiance's mother and sister called on my mother and me. Now mother and I would like to have them come over to dinner. Would it be all right for us to call on them and at the same time invite them to dinner? His father is dead. DOUBTFUL.

Yes, it would be all right for you and your mother to call on your fiance's mother and sister and at the same time invite them to dinner.

"GREAT AMERICAN SIN. WHAT IS IT? EXTRAVAGANCE"

"The great American sin is extravagance," says William A. Day, under secretary of state. "A well-traveled Hindu is reported to have said, in recounting his impressions, that of all the lands he had visited the United States is the only one where the inside of a slice of bread is eaten and the crust is thrown away. Americans have come to believe luxuries necessities. We cannot long wallow in luxury and prodigality and endure. Evidently our war-time efforts to teach habits of thrift and saving have accomplished but little permanent good. An extra and permanent effort might profitably be made to check the extraordinary watefulness of our people individually and collectively. The number of persons who live up to every cent of their incomes increases daily. The desire for high living is the incentive."

"WE PAY THE PENALTY FOR BEING AGGRESSIVE AND ACCUMULATIVE"

Mrs. Almon Hensley, prominent New York club woman and sociologist, says: "We pay the penalty for being the aggressive and accumulating people that we are by becoming neurasthenics. The direct causes of nervousness of American women are insufficient rest, insufficient air and exercise, over-eating and unwise eating, fashions in dress, social ambitions, unhealthy literature and bad thinking. We hear too much about diet. Let those things be sufficiently demonstrated before we nail the banner of any particular diet reform on our flag staff. We all eat too much. Our women resort to narcotics and stimulants to keep themselves keyed up to the necessary pitch. A nervous mother does more harm than an intemperate father. Her nervousness makes her discriminating and unjust, unduly fault-finding and unduly indulgent."

Sowing grass seed on a special fabric in a factory where the temperature is always right for quick growth has been perfected in England, carpets of green grass being produced which can be used on golf links, and when the fabric rots away the grass takes root in the soil.

On a train which runs between Berlin and Hamburg there has been installed a complete duplex radio-telephony, which makes it possible to carry on a conversation with every telephone subscriber in these two cities.

Iron ore used as a binder in place of sand clay is saving from $2,000 to $3,000 a mile in the cost of road building in northwestern Louisiana, it is estimated.

Paris Besieged"—Under this an illustrated magazine of don calls attention to the afnce of American tourists in French capital.

One sees no one but Ameri-, one hears only their harsh l accent, with only rarely a d of pure English and a little ttering of French. Elsie Janis oing the same old dance at the ambra, Pearl White scarcely leaves Paris and the celed Ritz bar, where the latest European and New York scandals are hashed over, and any old day one can see the eternally youthful Fanny Ward."

L'Oeuvre wonders if, after all, English visitors are here in fewer numbers than their American cousins. Every bank holiday sees them in swarms around the Place de l'Opera in their smart tweeds and woolen stockings, looking as if they were ready for the Moors instead of fashionable Paris. At any rate, the French refuse to take sides in the debate and only feel flattered over the attraction which their city exerts over the people from across the Channel and the Atlantic. And Parisian merchants meet with the same open arms the men with dollars and those who have pounds sterling in their pockets.

The "America" was the talk of the Salon dHorticulture in the Cours la Reinne on the banks of the Seine. There were roses of every kind and quality, enormous double ones almost as large as a small cabbage—the famous "rose Leveque," the "Queen Alexandra," a "Madame Poincare"—but the "America" was the unique flower of the exposition.

It was a rose with petals which never fall, but fade upon the stem. It came from the other side of the Atlantic, of course, and will soon be in all the Paris flower shops.

College conductors are to be seen on many of the Paris motorbusses and streetcars during rush hours, between 5 and 8 p. m. The ten francs offered for the supplementary work go a good way toward a dinner for a hungry college man whose budget is small. As the season advances they take their places on the big omnibusses used for Sunday outings to surrounding villages and resorts. For the whole day run the company offers about $2. The work is neither difficult nor disagreeable, and calls mainly for much patience, good temper and gentle handling of foreigners who speak little French.

Billy Whiskers

by Frances Trego Montgomery

ou remember that the park ener was telling the police- about seeing Billy and Nan

When I got pretty near 'um," vent on, "I went to jump over ire that was stretched along path to keep people off the s, and I took a header and ed my nose in the ground. t made me mad, and I ped up and ran after 'um just ard as I could with my rake ed to hit 'um the minute I got enough. And if you'll be it them two sassy things kept a aten and aten and in' straight at me without so h as a word.

This made me blazen mad and etermined to hit the biggest sassiest one a whack that ld break his back. But if 'll believe it, when the rake e down, no goat was there, it buried its teeth in the nd. That blamed goat had stepped aside and dodged it k as a whistle! And while I tryin' to get the rake out of ground to try and give him a ck, both of 'um ran out that h gate."

North gate, did you say?"

Yes. What is queer about ?"

Oh, nothing, nothing at all, I re you!" and the policeman ked off in a brown study.

Queer guy, that," mussed the dener to himself, and went k to work with his rake. But ry time he raised his rake m the grass his teeth shut toher as if he was drawing it ough Billy's long hair and he ed it was hurting him.

ow if you would like to have explanation of how it came ut that Billy and Nannie were n to go out at all four gates, ill tell you. They went out east gate and ran along the side of the park until they he to the south gate. Then y went inside the park again for a while, and were finally driven out that gate. Finding themselves once more outside, they trotted along till they reached the west gate, and went in again. This they did until they had entered by all four gates, and been driven out of each of them. Billy thought it would be a good way to throw anyone who might be following them off their track. And it proved to be an excellent plan, for the policeman gave up in disgust and went back to the station house and said he could find no trace of the goats worth following.

(Tomorrow you will find out whether anyone else tried to find the goats or whether they gave it up.)

EMERGENCY ENGINE LUBRICATION

Outside of actual breakages of important parts, hardly any mechanical accident to a car is more disheartening to the trained operator than failure of the engine oil circulation, for this forebodes most serious possible damage to the power plant. The cessation of oil movement may be due merely to dirt holding the relief valve open and thus preventing the development of the required pressure—a trouble readily removed by cleaning the valve—or it may be the result of air in the system, which can be eliminated by priming the pump with oil. A clogged strainer may be causing the trouble and require cleaning, but if a pipe is cracked or there is a bad obstruction in the system it may not prove practicable to do anything on the road. If operated very slowly and protected from hard work by a resort to the lower gears, an engine can be run for some little distance without serious danger, although oil circulation has failed, but operating it thus should be resorted to only of necessity. Supplying oil freely at short intervals, through the priming cocks or plug holes, reduces the likelihood of cylinder scoring. An engine which has "circulating splash" lubrication, from troughs normally kept filled by the pump and into which the connecting rod tips dip and distribute the oil to all bearing surfaces, can be kept in safe though smoky operation, if pump action fails, by supplying the crankcase with sufficient extra oil so that its level is abnormally high—high enough to keep the troughs submerged. Overlubrication will then take place, but no permanent damage will result. Everyone who has an engine with this kind of lubrication system should inform himself exactly how much oil to add to a "full" supply to raise the level by the required amount.

STEERING WHEEL JERKS AROUND

D. P. K. writes: The steering wheel of my —— car bothers me by jerking first in one direction and then in the other when the car is traversing streets with small, uneven depressions in them. I have had the wheels aligned without results and the mechancis can't tell where the trouble is. What do you think is the matter? Can any of the bearings be broken?

Answer: Our first thought is that the buffer springs in the ball ends of the steering connection rod (drag link) are not acting as they are intended to, to cushion slight deflective movements of the front wheels, so that they cannot reach the hand wheel. You better have the drag link removed and inspected to see if these buffer springs are in proper condition and adjustment and free to act. Lubrication and adjustment may be the only thing needed, or you may require new springs. We are assuming that the front wheels are practically parallel, but with a very slight gather, that they have the required amount of camber and that there is no serious amount of lost motion anywhere in the steering gear. We do not think any bearings are broken, but the knuckle bolts may have worn considerably in the steering knuckles, so that front wheel camber has been reduced, which would tend to exaggerate the deflective effect of road irregularities upon the wheels.

OIL SMOKE ENTERS BODY SPACE

F. B. McK. writes: The engine of my —— car smokes considerably, apparently out of the breather pipe, and the smoke, entering the body space, is very annoying. This trouble developed just after my having new piston rings fitted. Oil does not foul the spark plugs. What can you suggest?

Answer: It looks as though the fit of the rings was imperfect enough to allow considerable "blow-by" of hot gases past the pistons into the crank-case, the effect of which is to vaporize some of the oil on the cylinder walls into smoke and send it out the breather. Possibly the rings will wear in and you will have less trouble after the engine has been run a while longer. If you are sure the smoke comes out of the breather opening and not from an exhaust leak somewhere, you can try closing the breather opening more tightly, perhaps by placing a sort of gasket under its cap, although this might cause some oil to be forced out through the engine bearings. We presume you are using a first-rate grade of oil. If the rings do not wear in to give a tighter wall contact, you may be forced to change them for others capable of giving better sealing effect.

YES, IT HAPPENED

Once there was a woman
Who was going away from home
To take quite a vacation
And she said to her husband:
"I don't think that we
Will need any trunks
To carry our things.
We will make up a package
A very small parcel,
Which will carry all
We will have use for.
To me gowns and shoes
And things like those
Are of no importance.
I set no store by them.
I will take just a few things.
I hope this will please you."
Yes, a woman once said that,
Though you may not believe it.
The woman's name was Eve
And she was talking to Adam.
No other woman has said it since.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— By Howard R. Garis —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE FLUFFER

"Uncle Wiggily! Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" barked Jackie Bow Wow, the little puppy dog boy one day as he wagged his tail on the side porch of the rabbit gentleman's hollow stump bungalow.

"Well, what's the matter?" asked Mr. Longears, who was giving his automobile a drink of gasoline in the back yard. "Has the circus come and do you want me to take you?"

"No, the circus isn't here, but I wish it would come," barked Jackie, wagging his tail twice as fast. "Nurse Jane wanted me to ask you if you had seen her feather duster," went on the doggie boy, "I came over to get some carrots for my mother. She's going to make a shortcake. And after Nurse Jane gave me the carrots she told me to call to you and ask

"Don't go down that road!" whispered Bobby.

where the feather duster was."

"Tell Nurse Jane I'm sorry, but I don't know," spoke the bunny gentleman.

"Dear me! I wonder where my feather duster can have gone?" said Nurse Jane herself, looking from the kitchen window. "I thought you might, perhaps have taken it to dust your auto with Uncle Wiggily."

"No, indeed," answered Mr. Longears.

"I'll go home and get my mother's duster when I take her these carrots" offered Jackie. But Nurse Jane said to never mind, as she would use a rag to wipe off the piano.

But when Uncle Wiggily came in after fixing his car his muskrat lady housekeeper had him help her look over the hollow stump bungalow for the feather duster. It could not be found, however, and Mr. Longears said he would drive down to the seven and eight cent store and buy a new one.

"Perhaps I may have an adventure on the way," he said, as he put his bag of golf clubs on his car, for he was going to play a game of golf with Uncle Butter, the goat.

"I hope you have a good adventure," spoke Nurse Jane.

"Thank you," replied Uncle Wiggily. Then he rode on and on to the house where the goat gentleman lived. Uncle Butter leaped into the rabbit gentleman's auto and they were going off to the golf links, and Uncle Wiggily was tying a string on his paw to make him remember to get Nurse Jane a new feather duster when, all of a sudden something happened.

Out from behind a clump of bushes that grew near a little pond of water, popped Boby Ringtail, the raccoon boy.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily! Don't go down that road!" whispered Bobby, pointing with his front paw, which was like a baby's hand, down the road where the golf links were. "Don't go down that road!"

"Why not?" bleated Uncle Butter, the goat.

"Because there's a big fluffer down there and he may bite your ears!" whispered Bobby Ringtail.

"What's a Fluffer?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I don't know, perzactly," answered Bobby. "But it's some kind of a big bird with a very big tail. All I can see of the fluffer is his tail. It's sticking up back of a bush. I just passed by here on my way to the pond. And when I saw you coming I thought I'd stop and tell you to look out for the fluffer."

"We'll look out for him all right!" bleated Uncle Butter the goat. "Get one of your golf clubs, Uncle Wiggily, and I'll take one of mine. We'll go softly up behind this fluffer and scare him."

So the two friends, with golf clubs, tiptoed softly toward the clump of bushes that Bobby pointed out to them.

There he is! There's the fluffer!" whispered the raccoon boy.

Uncle Wiggily and Uncle Butter saw a big bunch of feathers. They took careful aim with their golf clubs. "Bang!" they struck the clump of feathers. Down they fell.

"We've got him!" bleated Uncle Butter running around to the other side of the bush! "Come on, Wiggy!"

And when Uncle Wiggily reached the place, expecting to see a big, savage bird, all he saw was—Nurse Jane's feather duster.

"Ho! Ho!" laughed the bunny. I see how this happened. One of the animal children took Nurse Jane's duster to play with and they forgot it. They left it here in the woods. The bunch of feathers sticking up behind a bush looked like the tail of a big bird who might be a fluffer. That's how you were fooled, Bobby.

"Maybe," admitted the raccoon boy. "Anyhow, I'm glad it wasn't a fluffer!" And Uncle Wiggily and Uncle Butter, as they rode on to play golf were also glad. And on their way home they gave Bobby a lollypop and took Nurse Jane's feather duster to her. So everything came out all right.

And if the pocket handkerchief doesn't hide away from the clothes pin when it ought to play tag with the wash tub, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the sand.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAY'S NEWS

RAYMOND POINCARE

Partisan politics, which are absorbing the attention of the French parliament more and more as the elections of next year come nearer, may drive Premier Poincare from power, in the opinion of some political prophets.

Raymond Poincare.

The premier is tired, physically and mentally. He has aged considerably under the tremendous load he has carried during the past eighteen months, and is thoroughly disgusted, his friends say, with the many intrigues that are occupying the attention of parliamentary leaders at a time when their entire efforts ought to be centered on the solution of the reparations question and the extraction of France from her critical financial situation.

Born in Bar-le-Duc August 20, 1860, Raymond Poincare was ten years old when a Prussian army marched past his father's dooryard on the way to Paris. German soldiers were billetted in his parents' house. The scars of invasion from beyond the Rhine were deep and ragged on the countryside, and likewise they were ingrained in the mind of young Poincare.

With such a heritage of hatred it is not surprising that in public life his attitude toward Germany has always been consistently bitter and uncompromising.

Since he first entered the chamber of deputies Poincare's utterances have revealed the singleness of purpose. He thinks and talks only of France. Humanity and world peace are abstract phrases to him. He brushes them aside. Nothing outside France is to be considered when her own interests are at stake.

Studied Finance Problems

In the chamber of deputies Poincare bent his energies to the problem of French finance. Here in 1890, as reporter for the budget, he first won recognition as a national figure. Three years later he was appointed minister of public education, and from that post he advanced to head the ministry of finances.

In 1903 Poincare was elected senator from the Meuse, and in 1906 he gave evidence of his growing importance by refusing to collaborate in the cabinet of George Clemenceau. It was Joseph Caillaux, who subsequently stepped in to head the government, and he in turn was succeeded in 1912 by Poincare himself.

President in 1913

In January, 1913, Poincare was elected to the presidency. This marked the floodtide of his political fortunes and it marked the crest of a wave of intense nationalism for which he stood. Clemenceau and Caillaux and the radical elements they represented were repudiated in the election.

Poincare was no figurehead in the president's chair, as most of his predecessors had been.

In July, 1914, President Poincare took his premier, Rene Viviani, and made a trip to Petrograd. There, with the rumble of the great war already booming faintly below the horizon, he had a series of confidential conferences with the czar. His followers pointed to this visit and say that it saved France in the early days of the war.

KRESS' 5-10-25 STORE

THE STORE OF TODAY

To throw the spotlight on any average business street of our country will reveal many average stores. The store of today, however, will always stand alone, even though it be in the group.

This is as it should be, for modern methods of retailing require that a store be something more than a trading place, and the modern demand of the 5 and 10 cent business requires that a Kress store be something more than just a 5, 10 and 25 cent store.

This is just what the Kress stores mean to any community. A department store in miniature, with price limits, gives a definite picture of Kress' Glendale, California store.

EAGLE ROCK

PLANS TO TEACH YOUNG CHILDREN

Petition Asks Establishment Of Kindergarten Class Next School Year

If the efforts of Mrs. S. P. Osborne, president of the San Rafael Parent-Teacher association, meet with success, there will be a kindergarten in the west end of Eagle Rock.

Petitions which Mrs. Osborne has prepared have been circulating and it is understood that the total of names in favor of the measure is large.

Every parent having a child five or six years of age, who lives west of Windermere avenue, should be interested in this measure, Mrs. Osborne feels.

D. V. B. S. Sessions Close

The sessions of the Daily Vacation Bible Schools, held for the past few weeks at both the Presbyterian and Methodist churches are now closed.

On Saturday, July 28, the Methodists held their final picnic; the Presbyterians held theirs on Monday, July 30.

The Seventh Day Adventist denomination plan the erection of a $1500 structure on East Park avenue near Central avenue. A canvass for funds is now under way, announces Dr. Prout.

Raymond B. Breenland and Miss Genevieve Brownell were married on Wednesday, July 25, Rev. B. B. Weatherall of the Presbyterian church officiating. The bride was well known and liked as a teacher in the Central school. The groom, who comes from Cazenovia, N. Y., is now engaged in business in Los Angeles. The couple are on a two weeks' northern motor trip, after which they will reside at Fourth and Burlington streets, Los Angeles.

Additional Phone Service

Residents of the South College View avenue section will welcome the news that new telephone cable is to be installed, obviating the four months' delay heretofore experienced.

Mrs. A. J. Braasch, of Windermore and Hill avenues, will soon open her magnificent new home. A fee will be charged for admission, the proceeds to go towards the piano fund of the Women's Twentieth Century club. Assisting Mrs. Braasch in her "housewarming" will be a number of the members of the Women's club, as well as of the Wednesday Morning Study club.

The business and professional Women's club gave a garden party between 4 and 7 o'clock, last Saturday afternoon, at the home of Miss Catherine L. Bessolo, 155 Ellenwood drive.

Rev. Leo C. Kline, a former Eagle Rock pastor, will conduct the morning services at the Methodist church on Sunday, August 12. This was his church when in this community.

OPEN EXCLUSIVE SHOP FOR WOMEN

Fashionable Offerings to Be Sold at Prices That Will Lure Buyers

Exclusive offerings in women's and misses' ready-to-wear are promised Glendalians by S. Rosenblum, who has come from New York to open an exclusive shop at 223 North Brand boulevard.

In addition to opening a business in Glendale, Mr. Rosenblum is to be a Glendale resident, making his home in the attractive new court at 842 North Brand boulevard.

"I am going to give Glendale shoppers stylish, exclusive offerings at tempting prices, which will prove to them that there is satisfaction in shopping at home."

Mr. Rosenblum comes to Glendale with a wide experience in ready-to-wear buying and selling in most of the larger cities of the United States. He has been in this business for twenty-five years and is confident of success in his business venture in Glendale.

He will open the North Brand shop on Saturday, and attractive souvenirs are to be given with every purchase on that day.

French gray has been used in fitting out the new shop, where the latest models in wraps, dresses, coats and exclusive millinery will be on display.

Banquet to Wind Up City Bowling League

Peter Niese, manager of the bowling alleys in Jensen's Recreation Center at 133 North Brand boulevard, is now making final plans for the banquet which will "wind up" the present season of the Glendale Bowling League. This will be held Tuesday night in the new Egyptian Village. Reservations are being made for about fifty local bowlers. They will meet in the bowling alleys at 6 o'clock.

The following ten teams will be represented: Gateways, Jensen Drug, Smith's Chevrolets, Coker & Taylor, Psenner Brothers, Knights of Columbus, Smith's Fords, Moreland Truck Company, American Legion, and the Page Furniture Company.

Platinum is found in all parts of the Philippines, but the quantities discovered have not been sufficiently large to pay for development.

Chosen Leader For Educational Body

MISS OLIVE M. JONES

Miss Olive M. Jones, principal of a New York City public school, has just been elected president of the National Education Association. The association represents over 140,000 teachers throughout the United States.

TUJUNGA

WILL ILLUMINATE MOUNTAIN CROSS

Club Will Be Organized to Keep Cross Alight on Mount McGroarty

Believing that the sentiment which prompted the raising of the cross on Mt. McGroarty in honor of San Ysidro, patron saint of little homes, is too fine to be allowed to die out from neglect, the residents of Tujunga have proposed the organization of a club, to be known as the San Ysidro club.

The object of this club would be to provide a means for lighting the cross at night the year 'round. From its point of vantage it can be seen for many miles up and down the valley and many people have asked why the cross is not illuminated at night. The original plans of the group of citizens who made possible the erection of the cross included night lighting and they are hoping the club will materialize.

Interested parties have already made applications for membership and made donations to a fund for electricity. G. M. Smedley, local manager for the Southern California Edison company, is preparing an estimate of the cost of this illumination. One plan that has been suggested is the formation of a club with a membership fee of $1.00 per year.

Will Exhibit Painting

Mrs. Laura Lee Sweet, who is building an art studio at Michigan avenue and Hillhaven road, has painted a picture of "The little gray house in the hollow," to be exhibited at the Glendale Art association exhibit during the month of August.

"The little gray house in the hollow, with the lilac bush in front and two big rocks behind" is the dream house of John Steven McGroarty, where meets the Millionaires' Club of Happiness and Contentment and the Congregation of the Faithful." It has been materialized into a picture by this gifted artist, with a technique that is quite modern.

It presents an interesting study of the famous home. The effect of the hollow is produced by swirls of blue mountains, green hills with dark shadows, colorful trees and roads. The picture combines a peculiarly elusive blending of mist and bright color.

Pick Scoutmaster

A special meeting of the Men's Brotherhood of the Tujunga Community church has been called for Friday evening, August 3, at 8 o'clock. The object of this meeting is the selection of a scoutmaster to take charge of the Boy Scout troop fathered by the Brotherhood.

Mrs. Alma F. Wieman of Tujunga and her son, Dr. Harry N. Wieman of Eagle Rock, have been spending a short vacation at the Pacific Palisades.

John MacDonald, son of Mrs. B. M. MacDonald, has leased a room in the building occupied by the Verdugo Hills Pipe & Plumbing company on Michigan avenue for the purpose of opening a barber shop of the first order, with up-to-date fixtures and equipment.

Wilmot Parcher, Glendale's first mayor and now a retired resident of Tujunga and honored member of the Millionaires of Happiness and Contentment club, recently celebrated his birthday.

Mrs. Jonderton of El Centro street is entertatining Mrs. Wiley M. Weaver of El Centro as her guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kellar went to their ranch at Fallbrook for their vacation.

George Brunton, paper hanger of Los Angeles, has purchased a lot on Pine street and expects to build a small bungalow.

BURBANK

LATE INVENTION AID TO CANNERS

Factory Rush Facilitated by New Machine Used on Peach Crop

Nearly 400 cannery hands, mostly women, are keeping the Libby, McNeill & Libby plant at full tilt these days, converting California peaches into that delectable canned product known the world over.

One of the features of this year's run has been the installation of the new slitting and pitting machinery, in charge of George A. Cowman, who comes direct from the factory of the Dunkley company, manufacturers of the machinery, at Oakland.

Each working unit comprises one slitter and three pitters. The slitting machines are in the form of two knives, one being the width of a peach above the other. These knives slit the peaches in halves, and the halves are carried on endless belts to the pitters, where little circular drills cut the pits out smoothly.

One operator at the Libby plant this year has already piled up a record of slitting 130 boxes of peaches in a single day.

Bank Officers Retained

The Farmers & Merchants bank, now known as the new First National bank, at a recent meeting of the directorate, retained in their present positions all the present officers, with the single exception that Miss Edna Crane, who had been assistant cashier, was made manager of the Farmers & Merchants Savings bank.

Satisfactory progress is reported on the addition to the bank now going in on the rear of the present quarters, and the room now occupied by the Building & Loan association.

This latter room will house the escrow department of the New First National bank, and G. T. Foster will be assistant secretary and escrow clerk.

The addition now going in will contain a consultation room for Mr. Scribner, vice-president of the bank.

Union Services for August

The Burbank churches will hold union meetings Sunday nights, during August, as has been their practice in the past.

Following is the schedule, as announced by the Ministerial association:

August 5—Baptist church, Methodist minister.

August 12—Christian church, Baptist minister.

August 19—Methodist church, Presbyterian minister.

August 26—Presbyterian church, Christian minister.

Sister Is Admitted To Visit President

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—President Harding's first visitor outside of his official family since his illness was his sister, Mrs. E. E. Remsberg of Santa Ana, Calif., who paid him a brief call yesterday afternoon.

After she had visited the sick room, Mrs. Remsberg declared that, while President Harding showed evidences of the serious illness he is suffering from, he appeared no worse than she had expected him to from reports that had reached her.

After seeing her brother she expressed every confidence in his speedy recovery. Mrs. Remsberg had lunch with Mrs. Harding.

Playwright's Ex-Wife Ejected From Home

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug 2.—Mrs. Lewis Sherwin, divorced wife of the noted playwright, and her three children were evicted yesterday from an old mill where they have been living on the Beekman estate near the Roosevelt home. Mrs. Sherwin had paid no rent recently and said she was penniless but expected to receive money from friends before night.

Prayers Are Offered For Harding's Health

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—Clergymen and lay people of all denominations gathered yesterday afternoon in Grace Cathedral in the united prayer service for the speedy recovery of President Harding. Secretary George Christian attended the service as representative of the chief executive.

A whole-hearted beginning

By order of the Board of Directors. G. B. WOODBERRY, Secy.
Dated, July 31, 1923.

LA CRESCENTA

NEW ADDITION IS READY FOR SALE

Many Advantages Offered in New Tract Appeal to Homeseekers

The Culbertson addition on Los Angeles avenue is about ready for the market. The curbs and sidewalks are being laid now and when finished will give La Crescenta the finest appearing residence site imaginable. This property being situated next to the school on one main boulevard, and one-half block below the state highway, will no doubt be but a short time on the market.

Light showers fell at intervals here in the valley Tuesday.

Mrs. Hall of Sycamore grove, who has been very ill in the hospital, is now out and took her first drive to La Crescenta Sunday.

John Hansen, who has been visiting his grandmother in Huntington Park, is at home again.

Reports Lot Sales

Mrs. Hickey, tract saleswoman of Honolulu Acres, reports the sale of two lots in that addition in the last few days.

Mrs. Arthur Cox, who accompanied her husband to Camp Royl Kent at Arrowhead Lake, has returned, after having a delightful visit in the camp. Mr. Cox, who is assistant scoutmaster, went to Arrowhead Lake in charge of the local Boy Scout encampment.

U. S. Honors Heroes of Destroyer Chauncey

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 2.—United States Ambassador Moore today unveiled a memorial tablet to the officers and men of the United States Destroyer Chauncey, who lost their lives during the war in a collision while patroling the Straits of Gibraltar.

Admiral Scales and men and officers from the United States battleships Arkansas, Maryland, North Dakota and Delaware participated in the exercises.

Representatives of the British Navy also participated.

HARDING DIES

President Passes Away Tonight

Wife Is At His Bedside Reading to Him As End Comes

AN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—President War-
G. Harding died at 7:30 tonight in his room he Palace Hotel. The end came without ning and was fearful.

Only Dr. Sawyer, Mrs. Harding and two es were present. Mrs. Harding was read-to the President a portion of an article from agazine. At the end of a paragraph she sed a moment. The President said in an voice, "that sounds good—go ahead, read e more."

Mrs. Harding resumed reading. The Prest threw his hand over his head, there was ovement of his hand and he was dead.

Mrs. Harding did not collapse or break n after the tragic loss of her husband's life.
turned to the rest of the party who had ved and said:

"I don't care to cry now, as it would never
. I must be brave". And she was.

Telegrams were sent to Vice-President olidge, Chief Justice Taft and all members
he cabinet advising of the President's death.

Vice-President Coolidge will take the oath of office for the presidency tomorrow in Massachusetts.

Funeral arrangements are now being made and the party will leave San Francisco as soon as possible

Death came to the Chief Executive while he was conversing with members of his family, and according to an official statement issued by physicians was apparently due to some brain evolvement, probably an apoplexy.

President Warren G. Harding

FIGHT TO EXIST ON CHEAP WAGES

Poorly Paid Girls Have Real Battle to Make Ends Meet on Salary

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 2.—The economic struggles of the "poor but honest working girl" are real as life in their desperation, according to the records of social workers here. The fight to exist decently on a wage of $15 to $20 weekly—often with a wage of $10 only—is no mean job, as the current rents charged will show.

Mrs. J. G. McKim, matron of the Des Moines Business Women's Home, declares average earnings of her roomers are $70 a month. A half share in a room with three meals a day may be had at the home for $6 weekly, and there is a long waiting list seeking admission. If a girl earns nearly $100 a month she is asked to live with a private family at higher rent, so that another working girl earning less may move in. The girls can do their own washing and ironing at a small extra charge.

The Y. W. C. A. is crowded with girls earning an average salary of $80 monthly, Mrs. L. H. Ingrahm, employment secretary, stated.

"Unless a girl is living at home we do not send her to apply for positions in laundries, restaurants and other places paying $10 and $12 weekly," Mrs. Ingrahm declared. "It is impossible for any woman to live decently on that pay unless she has other help."

FRENCH TOURIST BUSINESS BOOMS

Statistics Show That Visitors Leave $75,000,000 Every Year in Country

PARIS, Aug. 2.—The tourist business pays in France perhaps better than in the so-called "tourist" centers, such as Switzerland and parts of Italy.

France is the magnet which attracts more Americans than any other country and with the least effort. In fact, many visitors finish by thinking that the French do little to draw tourists to their sunny shores, but they come back every year. It is as true today as years ago that every American has two countries—his own and France.

During the month of May alone 77 passenger boats left New York for the Old World, each one with about 300 first-class and 500 second-class passengers, making a total of about 60,000 Americans, four-fifths of whom were tourists.

One-half of the number landed in France at Cherbourgh or Havre. The other half is certain to come to France after visiting England, Belgium or Italy. And one can safely say that France is the place of the longest sejour. All of which means that France is where the most dollars are dropped.

Statisticans have recently calculated that every American leaves about 33 per cent of his total expenditures to the French merchants, which in a good season represents about $75,000,000.

BOYS WILL HOLD AIR TOURNAMENT

Embryo Aviators Will Learn Mechanical Details of Flying Machines

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Aviation and its myriad mechanical intricacies will be explained and discussed for the benefit of several hundred sturdy lads of Chicago in an airplane tournament to be held here August 18 and 19. The project, which has received wide publicity for the past several weeks, already has engrossed the attention of a host of youngsters of an inventive turn of mind.

For weeks Chicago boys have been poring over blue prints and attempting to create the design called for. The promoters of the tournament said the boys thus have been taught the value of being accurate and careful with their measurements, as the slightest variation invariably leads to a ruined product.

All of the young entrants in the tournament are expected to make a venture into the science of aeronautics. This will afford them an opportunity to learn of the lifting power of the air, the force of air currents, the necessary size of the wings and the propeller, the problems of momentum and of speed, and the balancing of the plane in relation to all these factors.

The amateur air event, in the opinion of Terrence Vincent, one of its most enthusiastic sponsors, will be a rare educational treat for Chicago's boys and, at the same time, the youngsters will reap much joy from their efforts.

Almost fifty toy planes have been completed since the tournament was first announced and have been placed on exhibition, Vincent said.

BEAUTY PARLORS AID DEMOCRACY

Clients of Every Station in Life Patronize Shops, Manager Declares

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2.—Shop girls and society queens sit side by side to have eyebrows plucked, hair bleached or frizzed, a facial going over, or otherwise to be embellished above the shoulders, according to beauty shop owners here.

"Our clients range in age from 16 to 60," the manager of the largest shop in this city declared in commenting on the trade. "We bleach them, dye them, curl them, frizz them, arch their eyebrows, sell them eyelash blacking and give free advice on keeping themselves physically fit.

"There was a time when only wealthy, well-to-do women of middle age afforded regular visits to the hairdresser and manicurist. But today shopgirls and factory workers come in for their massages as regularly as men stop in at their barber shops for a haircut."

Best qualities of isinglass are used for culinary purposes, also in the manufacture of courtplaster and in the making of India ink, while the poorer grades are used in making glue.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Mad Manhattan — pushing, pulling, pummeling, racing to subways, running from the "Ls."

"Where are you going?" the inquisitive reporter asked.

The middle-aged woman—"To buy a nut sundae."

The middle-aged man—"Newsstand—get a golf magazine."

The old lady—"Tickets for the Winter Garden."

The old man—"To get a necktie."

The youth with the oiled hair—"Home."

The flapper in sleeveless gown—"To call a cop, you fresh thing."

This is a sad, sad day for Rose Taylor.

They're going to tear down Ludlow street jail. And for fifty years Rose, who is 80, has been hostess to New York's greatest as they rested behind the bars of the historic old Alimony Club, made famous in song and story. Rose's official title was cook.

"Sure an' there's been some lovely boys there," Rose laments. "Well I remember Boss Tweed—but he wasn't boss any more in 1875, the day he went out for a walk and didn't come back for two years," Rose confides.

The Alimony Club of old Ludlow has 3,000 members, active and emeritus.

General Gregory Semenoff, of Russia, once languished inside. Nicky Arnstein was another. Harry K. Thaw spent a while there. Conway Tearle, the actor, is an ex-member. The list could go on for columns. All were civil prisoners, no criminal convictions being confined there.

"Why, I've had passes to all the best shows from the stars themselves while they were in here," Rose boasts.

Now the jail is to come down and a playground for children is to substitute.

The proverbial inventor to whose door came the wide world to purchase the best mouse trap has nothing on the man possessed of the rarest book.

Gabriel Wells, Fifth avenue book dealer, found an imperfect copy of the Gutenberg Bible—the first book ever printed with movable type.

He is selling it for $150 a page—one page to a customer. John Golden, theatrical producer, was his first customer. Jerome D. Kern, musical comedy composer, bought page 2. Beverly Chew, former head of the Metropolitan Trust, has the next page.

F. G. Bemis journeyed from Boston for a page. C. A. Baldwin, Colorado Springs, came to New York to purchase. W. K. Richardson, of Boston, has another page, as have Rev. Dr. Roderick Terry, of Newport, R. I.; R. B. Adams, Buffalo; H. V. Jones, Minneapolis.

The copy sold had 593 pages—$44,400 for the edition.

Arms and the woman is the burning question of the day in Gotham.

And J. Crawford Stevens, banker, is the hero of the tale.

"Go home and put on some clothes," Stevens told 150 girl employes who appeared for work in fashion's latest decree — the sleeveless gown.

"Only one woman in every 1,000 has a pretty arm from the elbow up—why do they persist in showing them, then?" he demands, adding: "That isn't what prompted me to order sleeves on the dresses of my workers—modesty requires some clothes," he insists.

Fellow business men say Stevens should have a monument erected to his memory.

"Indeed, he should—maybe his action will induce women to dress more in taste," chimes in Miss Helen McCormick, lawyer, and acknowledged as New York's best dressed working girl.

"The working girl should use common sense in her dress," Miss McCormick advises. "The need is first to be considered, then the means and then individuality."

Miss McCormick says:

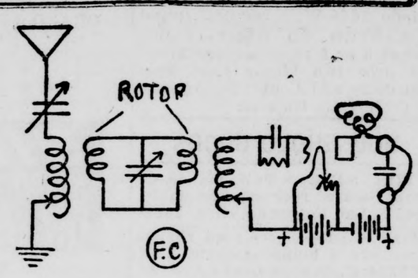

"Fat women in huge plaids and wide stripes on the horizontal are nightmares.

"Undressed lean women just over-emphasizing their leanness are repulsive.

"Huge persons in short skirts that look like elephants let loose at the circus are a joke."

BY FRANK CHAPMAN

THE following material is required to make a very selective set — 2 vario-couplers, 2 variable condensers .001 and .0005 microfarad capacity, variometer, audion, socket, rheostat, grid leak and condenser, telephones, fixed condenser, A and B batteries.

This set is patterned after the old Marconi-multiple tuner and has regeneration added to it in the form of a plate variometer. It is about the last thing in selectivity and requires considerable skill in operating as it is extremely critical but once adjusted, all other interference is eliminated.

The "intermediate" circuit consists of the secondaries or rotors of the "two vario-couplers shunted by the .0005 variable condensers. By manipulating the coupling of these coils to their primaries and moving the variable condenser, selectivity of a remarkable degree is obtained.

It has been found in some cases that part of the windings of the rotors of ready-made vario-couplers had to be taken off for this set to function properly. This can very readily be done and tests should be made using between 15 and 30 turns on each rotor. Of course, the tests should begin with thirty turns and gradually reduced until the best number has been determined.

If the vario-couplers are made at home, the primary can consist of from 70 to 100 turns tapped every ten turns. The .001 variable condenser used in the primary will tune sharply between the taps, while the second vario-coupler should have unit taps as well as tens, that is, have two switches, the upper one being for the unit turns and the lower one for the turn taps. To make tuning easier, this primary of vario-coupler can be shunted by a .00025 variable condenser and the coil tapped every ten turns using only one switch but this adds to the number of controls and I believe there are enough as it is, although if one cares to use another control it will add to the efficiency of the set. Similarly, a potentiometer can be used with this set with better results as to distance but will not make it more select. With the large number of stations going now and some of them not so very far above the amateur wave hand, a select set is absolutely necessary if you are to copy these stations. On the other hand when you start to copy the stations using the longer broadcasting wave band, if you are situated near the coast or Great Lakes, you will be bothered by interference from ships. Therefore, a select set is necessary to enjoy all the programs. With one of these types of sets, local stations can be tuned out and out-of-town stations tuned in without any trouble, providing they are not on the same wave length. Of course, if you are located on top, as it were, of a powerful station, their signals will be "forced" on you and no type of set will tune them out and tune others in. If you have several stations in the same city of the same power, there should be no difficulty encountered in tuning any of them in or out at your convenience.

Before out-of-town or distant stations are tuned in, it would be well to note what effect varying either of the rotors, or both, or the variable condenser has on signals. At times, moving the condenser in the intermediate circuit just a trifle will bring in one station and cut out the other. For wave length adjustments, most of the tuning is done with the primaries of both vario-couplers, the first coupler being the primary circuit and the second one the secondary. The looser you have the coupling between the first coupler the more select will be the tuning.

POINTERS

A large condenser requires closer turning when tuning than a smaller condenser.

If you use a long one-wire aerial you won't have to solder any connections to it.

If you are going to lay your storage battery up give it a good charge and empty the electrolyte out.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SALT WELL

Uncle Wiggily, the jolly bunny rabbit gentleman, tooted his automobile horn beneath the window of Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, who was taking her early morning sleep in the hollow stump bungalow.

"Yes! Yes! What is it? Is the water pail on fire?" cried Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, poking her head out of the window.

Uncle Wiggily chuckled so hard that his pink nose twinkled.

"I don't see anything to laugh at!" squeaked Nurse Jane.

"You would if you were down here where I am," said the bunny. "You have your night cap on wrong side before!"

Nurse Jane quickly snatched off her cap and asked:

"Why are you tooting your auto horn so early in the morning if the water pail isn't on fire? You act like a milkman."

"I got up early before the milkman, because you and I are going to take a little run to the seashore," said Mr. Longears. "Hurry down, Nurse Jane, we'll have breakfast and go to the ocean."

So Nurse Jane hurried and soon she and Uncle Wiggily were down on the ocean beach, with the green waves breaking into white, foamy crests, as they tumbled on the sand.

"It is very jolly here," said Uncle Wiggily, kicking around with his hind feet and sending a shower of sand down Nurse Jane's neck.

"Yes, it is lovely," she agreed, as she stood on her head to let the sand run back on the beach. "I only hope you don't get the rheumatism, and I hope the Fuzzy Fox doesn't chase us."

"I'll not get the rheumatism, because it is a warm, hot day," said Mr. Longears. "As for the Fox, I guess he is far, far away."

Leaving the automobile to go to sleep under the boardwalk, Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane walked down the ocean shore in the sand, stopping now and then to pick up pretty pebbles or shells and to watch the beach crowd gathering choice, tender bits of sea weed.

"Wait a minute, Uncle Wiggily!" called the muskrat lady after a while.

"What's the matter now?" Mr. Longears wanted to know.

"There's something in my shoe," answered Nurse Jane.

"Perhaps it's your paw," suggested Uncle Wiggily.

"Nonsense! Don't try to be funny!" laughed Nurse Jane. "There is sand in my shoe and I must stop and take it out. It hurts when I walk."

So the muskrat lady sat down and took off her shoe, emptying out the sand that had drifted in as she walked. Then she and Uncle Wiggily went on a little farther and pretty soon the muskrat lady said again:

"Oh, I must stop once more and empty the sand out of my shoe."

"All right!" answered Uncle Wiggily, who was very kind and patient-like, so he waited while the muskrat lady sat down and took off her shoes, emptying out the sand once more.

Then they went on again, but after a while, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily looked behind him and he saw the Fuzzy Fox trotting along after him on the sand.

She threw the sand in the eyes of the Fox.

"Hurry! Hurry, Nurse Jane!" called the rabbit gentleman. "The Fox is coming and if we don't want our ears nibbled we must run and get in the auto."

"All right! Run along! I'm coming," cried Nurse Jane.

So Uncle Wiggily hopped along and Nurse Jane followed after, like Jack and Jill, and behind them, farther back, trotted the Fox. All of a sudden Nurse Jane cried:

"Oh, I must stop and take some sand out of my shoe!"

"This is no time to stop and take sand out of a shoe!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "Hurry! Hop along!" But Nurse Jane couldn't hop with the sand in her shoe, so she sat down to take it off. And just as she did along came the Fox.

Uncle Wiggily ran back to save Nurse Jane from the Fox, but the brave muskrat lady did just the right thing. She took off her shoe, which was half full of sand. And she threw the sand right in the eyes of the Fox, crying:

"There, you may have that sand! I don't want it!"

And the sand in the eyes of the Fox made him cough and sneeze and give him the hiccoughs, so that he cried: "Wow! Wow! Wow" and away he ran, nibbling no ears that day.

"It's a good thing, Nurse Jane, that you had sand in your shoe," said the rabbit gentleman, as he helped Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy into the auto under the boardwalk. And I think so myself, don't you?"

And now if the elephant doesn't step on the stick of peppermintt candy and turn it into a lollypop, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the ticklers.

"You are a nice kind of a policeman," jeered his comrades at the station. Can't find two big goats!"

"I guess you would find them," added one, "if he had butted you as that big goat did me! Just to get revenge on him, I have a notion to go back to the park and look for them myself."

"Go ahead! I wish you would! I lost trace of them in the park, but you are more than welcome to go and get on their trail from there."

As he hadn't much to do, the second policeman started out. Arriving at the park, he entered from the north and happened to inquire of the same gardner that the first policeman had interviewed earlier in the day.

When asked if he had seen two goats around there during the morning, the gardner told the same story as he had related to the other policeman.

"Would you mind telling me if those goats be valuable or not? For someone else has been askin' after them this mornin'."

"They have, they have? Who's been inquiring?"

'First comes along a policeman, and then a man so mad that he kept mutterin' to himself. And when I told him they had just run out of the north gate a few minutes before he came along, he pulled off his hat and started on a run toward the gate, and I saw him pull a pistol out of his pocket and heard him mumble to himself, 'I'll fix you, you old brute! I'll put a bullet through you at sight- Butt me, will you? And get me carried off to the police station? We'll see!" That was all I could catch, for he was off in the direction the goats had taken, running as fast as he could.

The policeman chuckled to himself, for he knew the man to whom the gardner referred was the fellow they had had at the police station, having arrested him because the old woman insisted he had turned his nose on her.

"I'll tell you why we want that goat," he said. "He is very fierce, and I am surprised that you are alive to tell the tale, for generally he butts or stamps anyone to death who touches him or goes near to him."

"Jimminy crickets! It is a good thing then that I missed him when I went after him with my rake!"

[Don't you wonder if the policeman found Billy and Nannie?]

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—A friend of mine took me to an all-day picnic and I furnished the lunch. I have always liked him, but he has some queer ways and is very jealous. While at the picnic he left me alone quite a bit, and at first I felt very unhappy and just like a wallflower. Then another boy saw me and stayed with me until lunch time. He did not have a girl there.

At lunch time I hunted up the boy who had invited me to the picnic and said it was time to eat. He was quiet all through lunch and hardly said a word to me. This made me very angry, and I didn't say much either. After lunch he went off again and left me alone. It wasn't long before the other boy came back, and we had a very good time together.

Later in the afternoon, when everyone started going home, I found the boy who had taken me wasn't anywhere to be seen. When I asked about him, some one said he had gone home. Then the second boy said he would drive me home in his car, and I was very glad to accept his invitation.

After getting home I got a telephone call from the first boy, and he said dreadful things to me about the way I had acted. He had not left the picnic, and when he found I had gone home with some one else, he was furious. He says he never wants to have anything more to do with me. I am perfectly willing he should not, but I do not feel I was really to blame.

Do you think it was my fault that things turned out as they did? DESERTED DOTTY.

The boy brought the trouble on himself by acting as he did. After taking you to the picnic it was most decidedly his place to stay with you and see that you had a good time. You are not in the least to blame. It was most fortunate that there was another young man present to look after you and save you from embarrassment.

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—I am 19 years old and a stenographer in a downtown office. Yesterday a young man telephoned and asked to talk to me. Before I was on the wire the other receiver was hung up, and so, when I answered the party had been cut off.

At first I thought he would telephone again, but he did not. I am not absolutely sure who called, but I think I know. Would you advise me to phone the young man I think it was and ask him if he was the one? S. T. W.

I would not advise you to telephone the young man you think called you. When you see him ask him if he called, but forget about the matter until you do see him. He probably realizes you were not to blame for the thing that happened.

Dear Mrs. Thomson:—Has one girl any right to telephone a boy who is going with another girl and ask him to come to see her? A certain girl telephoned my friend and said she wished he would come over to see her. He told me about it, but he didn't go. Don't you think it was a very bold thing for her to do?

SWEET SIXTEEN.

It certainly was bold for the girl to telephone a boy who was not interested in her and ask him to come to see her. It is not a matter to absorb much of your thought, however, since he did not go and did not care to go.

Let Us All Chase Butterflies

I was walking through a large store, looking for an archery set or a pair of knitting needles or something—I had forgotten just what it was—but something distinctly masculine, when I saw a large number of gaily colored mosquito netting bags on the ends of sticks. There seemed to be thousands of them.

"Look here, varlet," I said to one of the most ladylike gentleman floorwalkers I had ever seen. "What are those things?"

"Oh, my dear sir," said he, daubing a bit of powder on his nose, "those are nothing less than butterfly nets."

"What are they good for?" I asked.

"To catch butterflies in—haw haw! It is the latest form of exercise, chasing butterflies. Blow me, else."

"Have you sold one yet?"

"Loads of them,"

"Do you mean to say that sane people are running around with those things trying to snare butterflies?"

"Running is right. The butterflies are agile little beggars, you know."

"Well," I said. "The women are always having some new health fad."

"Women? Oh, no, indeed. The women are not buying them. It's the men, you know."

"What kind of men?"

"All kinds. I sold one gentleman six nets yesterday. He is going to have a party. What color would you prefer, sir?"

Well, I thought it all over and decided to take a pink one. I took it out in the park later in the day to give it a trial trip. I got one hop toad and I almost got a sparrow, but no butterflies. Several other men were out exercising their butterfy nets, and one of them had knocked a policeman's cap off and another had snared a baby which was sitting in a cab. A third one told me he had been trying his butterfly net at home and that it was great for Croton bugs, which is an idea worth trying.

It is again reported that two or three sharks have been seen in the neighborhood of the well-known and justly famous Atlantic coast. This, of course, will be of little interest to the majority of the bathing beauties, who never go near the water, but to the few who swim it may mean something

In order to handle this subpect we have looked up the manners and customs of sharks, and we find by consulting the best authorities, the following facts:

The shark is the most artful of the sea monsters. He has a delightful sense of humor. One of his favorite tricks is to show off at a bathing beach, scare all the summer resorters up into the foothills, and then turn out to be a floating plank or barrel.

The shark is harmless when swimming upright, or right side up. In order to bite he has to flop over on his back. When he is pursuing a swimmer and flops over on his back the trick is to dive under him and stay there.

Sharks do not often pursue their intended victims ashore, but there have been instances, related by honest fisherfolk, when these monster fish have not stopped at the coast, but have toured right along inland, have wrecked fishermen's cabins and chased fishermen up trees.

There was an instance somewhere on the Maine coast last year where a shark, maddened by hunger, flopped ashore and chased a mule nine miles into the country. The mule escaped by climbing a high elm tree, and the shark wrecked a general store nearby with his tail and devoured all the canned goods in said store, cans and all. The shark suffered terribly from indigestion on its way back to the coast, but managed to get away, and has not been seen since by the veracious narrator of the tale.

HARDING DIES

President Passes Away Tonight

Wife Is At His Bedside Reading to Him As End Comes

AN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—President War- G. Harding died at 7:30 tonight in his room the Palace Hotel. The end came without rning and was peaceful.

Only Dr. Sawyer, Mrs. Harding and two rses were present. Mrs. Harding was read- to the President a portion of an article from nagazine. At the end of a paragraph she used a moment. The President said in an n voice, "that sounds good—go ahead, read ne more."

Mrs. Harding resumed reading. The Pres- nt threw his hand over his head, there was novement of his hand and he was dead.

Mrs. Harding did not collapse or break wn after the tragic loss of her husband's life. e turned to the rest of the party who had ived and said:

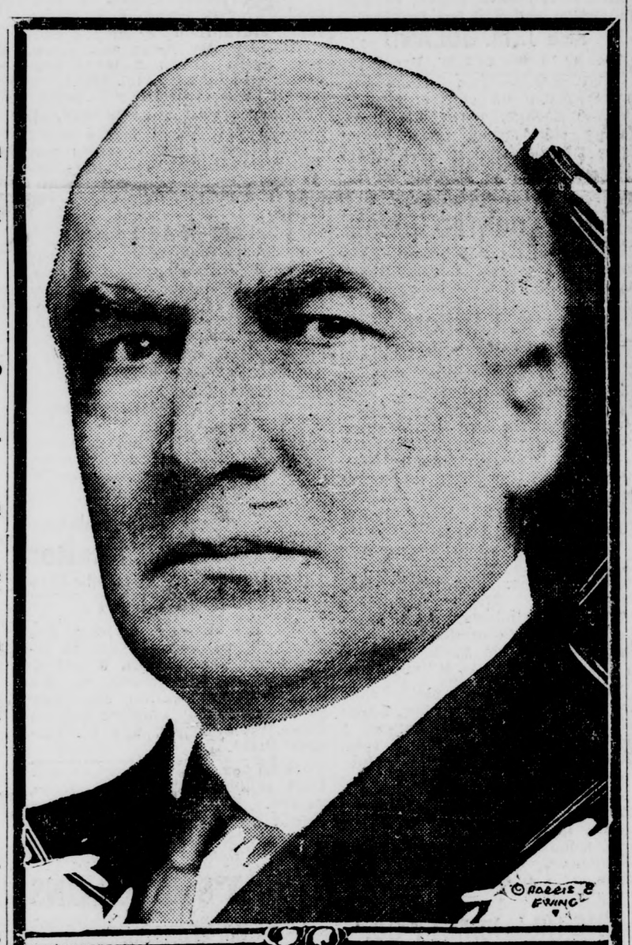

"I don't care to cry now, as it would never d. I must be brave". And she was.

Telegrams were sent to Vice-President olidge, Chief Justice Taft and all members the cabinet advising of the President's death.

Vice-President Coolidge will take the oath of office for the presidency tomorrow in Massachusetts.

Funeral arrangements are now being made and the party will leave San Francisco as soon as possible

Death came to the Chief Executive while he was conversing with members of his family, and according to an official statement issued by physicians was apparently due to some brain involvement, probably an apoplexy.

President Warren G. Harding

It is probable that the President's remains will be taken from San Francisco Friday evening, but it is impossible to announce that as definite now.

It is not yet determined whether they will be taken to Marion, Ohio, or Washington, D. C.

The remains will not be taken from the Palace Hotel until they are removed directly to the train, it is said.

BOYS WILL HOLD AIR TOURNAMENT

Embryo Aviators Will Learn Mechanical Details of Flying Machines

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Aviation and its myriad mechanical intricacies will be explained and discussed for the benefit of several hundred sturdy lads of Chicago in an airplane tournament to be held here August 18 and 19. The project, which has received wide publicity for the past several weeks, already has engrossed the attention of a host of youngsters of an inventive turn of mind.

For weeks Chicago boys have been poring over blue prints and attempting to create the design called for. The promoters of the tournament said the boys thus have been taught the value of being accurate and careful with their measurements, as the slightest variation invariably leads to a ruined product.

All of the young entrants in the tournament are expected to make a venture into the science of aeronautics. This will afford them an opportunity to learn of the lifting power of the air, the force of air currents, the necessary size of the wings and the propeller, the problems of momentum and of speed, and the balancing of the plane in relation to all these factors.

The amateur air event, in the opinion of Terrence Vincent, one of its most enthusiastic sponsors, will be a rare educational treat for Chicago's boys and, at the same time, the youngsters will reap much joy from their efforts.

Almost fifty toy planes have been completed since the tournament was first announced and have been placed on exhibition, Vincent said.

BEAUTY PARLORS AID DEMOCRACY

Clients of Every Station in Life Patronize Shops, Manager Declares

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2.—Shop girls and society queens sit side by side to have eyebrows plucked, hair bleached or frizzed, a facial going over, or otherwise to be embellished above the shoulders, according to beauty shop owners here.

"Our clients range in age from 16 to 60," the manager of the largest shop in this city declared in commenting on the trade. "We bleach them, dye them, curl them, frizz them, arch their eyebrows, sell them eyelash blacking and give free advice on keeping themselves physically fit.

"There was a time when only wealthy, well-to-do women of middle age afforded regular visits to the hairdresser and manicurist. But today shopgirls and factory workers come in for their massages as regularly as men stop in at their barber shops for a haircut."

Best qualities of isinglass are used for culinary purposes, also in the manufacture of courtplaster and in the making of India ink, while the poorer grades are used in making glue.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Mad Manhattan — pushing, pulling, pummeling, racing to subways, running from the "Ls."

"Where are you going?" the inquisitive reporter asked.

The middle-aged woman—"To buy a nut sundae."

The middle-aged man—"Newsstand—get a golf magazine."

The old lady—"Tickets for the Winter Garden."

The old man—"To get a necktie."

The youth with the oiled hair—"Home."

The flapper in sleeveless gown—"To call a cop, you fresh thing."

This is a sad, sad day for Rose Taylor.

They're going to tear down Ludlow street jail. And for fifty years Rose, who is 80, has been hostess to New York's greatest as they rested behind the bars of the historic old Alimony Club, made famous in song and story. Rose's official title was cook.

"Sure an' there's been some lovely boys there," Rose laments. "Well I remember Boss Tweed—but he wasn't boss any more in 1875, the day he went out for a walk and didn't come back for two years," Rose confides.

The Alimony Club of old Ludlow has 3,000 members, active and emeritus.

General Gregory Semenoff, of Russia, once languished inside. Nicky Arnstein was another. Harry K. Thaw spent a while there. Conway Tearle, the actor, is an ex-member. The list could go on for columns. All were civil prisoners, no criminal convictions being confined there.

"Why, I've had passes to all the best shows from the stars themselves while they were in here," Rose boasts.

Now the jail is to come down and a playground for children is to substitute.

The proverbial inventor to whose door came the wide world to purchase the best mouse trap has nothing on the man possessed of the rarest book.

Gabriel Wells, Fifth avenue book dealer, found an imperfect copy of the Gutenberg Bible—the first book ever printed with movable type.

He is selling it for $150 a page—one page to a customer. John Golden, theatrical producer, was his first customer. Jerome D. Kern, musical comedy composer, bought page 2. Beverly Chew, former head of the Metropolitan Trust, has the next page.

F. G. Bemis journeyed from Boston for a page. C. A. Baldwin, Colorado Springs, came to New York to purchase. W. K. Richardson, of Boston, has another page, as have Rev. Dr. Roderick Terry, of Newport, R. I.; R. B. Adams, Buffalo; H. V. Jones, Minneapolis.

The copy sold had 593 pages—$44,400 for the edition.

Arms and the woman is the burning question of the day in Gotham.

And J. Crawford Stevens, banker, is the hero of the tale.

"Go home and put on some clothes," Stevens told 150 girl employes who appeared for work in fashion's latest decree—the sleeveless gown.

"Only one woman in every 1,000 has a pretty arm from the elbow up—why do they persist in showing them, then?" he demands, adding: "That isn't what prompted me to order sleeves on the dresses of my workers—modesty requires some clothes," he insists.

Fellow business men say Stevens should have a monument erected to his memory.

"Indeed, he should—maybe his action will induce women to dress more in taste," chimes in Miss Helen McCormick, lawyer, and acknowledged as New York's best dressed working girl.

"The working girl should use common sense in her dress," Miss McCormick advises. "The need is first to be considered, then the means and then individuality."

Miss McCormick says:

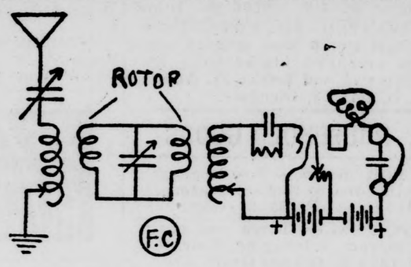

"Fat women in huge plaids and wide stripes on the horizontal are nightmares.

"Undressed lean women just over-emphasizing their leanness are repulsive.

"Huge persons in short skirts that look like elephants let loose at the circus are a joke."

BY FRANK CHAPMAN

THE following material is required to make a very selective set — 2 vario-couplers, 2 variable condensers .001 and .0005 microfarad capacity, variometer, audion, socket, rheostat, grid leak and condenser, telephones, fixed condenser, A and B batteries.

This set is patterned after the old Marconi-multiple tuner and has regeneration added to it in the form of a plate variometer. It is about the last thing in selectivity and requires considerable skill in operating as it is extremely critical but once adjusted, all other interference is eliminated.

The "intermediate" circuit consists of the secondaries or rotors of the "two vario-couplers shunted by the .0005 variable condensers. By manipulating the coupling of these coils to their primaries and moving the variable condenser, selectivity of a remarkable degree is obtained.

It has been found in some cases that part of the windings of the rotors of ready-made vario-couplers had to be taken off for this set to function properly. This can very readily be done and tests should be made using between 15 and 30 turns on each rotor. Of course, the tests should begin with thirty turns and gradually reduced until the best number has been determined.

If the vario-couplers are made at home, the primary can consist of from 70 to 100 turns tapped every ten turns. The .001 variable condenser used in the primary will tune sharply between the taps, while the second vario-coupler should have unit taps as well as tens, that is, have two switches, the upper one being for the unit turns and the lower one for the turn taps. To make tuning easier, this primary of vario-coupler can be shunted by a .00025 variable condenser and the coil tapped every ten turns using only one switch but this adds to the number of controls and I believe there are enough as it is, although if one cares to use another control it will add to the efficiency of the set. Similarly, a potentiometer can be used with this set with better results as to distance but will not make it more select. With the large number of stations going now and some of them not so very far above the amateur wave hand, a select set is absolutely necessary if you are to copy these stations. On the other hand when you start to copy the stations using the longer broadcasting wave band, if you are situated near the coast or Great Lakes, you will be bothered by interference from ships. Therefore, a select set is necessary to enjoy all the programs. With one of these types of sets, local stations can be tuned out and out-of-town stations tuned in without any trouble, providing they are not on the same wave length. Of course, if you are located on top, as it were, of a powerful station, their signals will be "forced" on you and no type of set will tune them out and tune others in. If you have several stations in the same city of the same power, there should be no difficulty encountered in tuning any of them in or out at your convenience.

Before out-of-town or distant stations are tuned in, it would be well to note what effect varying either of the rotors, or both, or the variable condenser has on signals. At times, moving the condenser in the intermediate circuit just a trifle will bring in one station and cut out the other. For wave length adjustments, most of the tuning is done with the primaries of both vario-couplers, the first coupler being the primary circuit and the second one the secondary. The looser you have the coupling between the first coupler the more select will be the tuning.

POINTERS

A large condenser requires closer turning when tuning than a smaller condenser.

If you use a long one-wire aerial you won't have to solder any connections to it.

If you are going to lay your storage battery up give it a good charge and empty the electrolyte out.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SALT WELL

Uncle Wiggily, the jolly bunny rabbit gentleman, tooted his automobile horn beneath the window of Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, who was taking her early morning sleep in the hollow stump bungalow.

"Yes! Yes! What is it? Is the water pail on fire?" cried Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, poking her head out of the window.

Uncle Wiggily chuckled so hard that his pink nose twinkled.

"I don't see anything to laugh at!" squeaked Nurse Jane.

"You would if you were down here where I am," said the bunny. "You have your night cap on wrong side before!"

Nurse Jane quickly snatched off her cap and asked:

"Why are you tooting your auto horn so early in the morning if the water pail isn't on fire? You act like a milkman."

"I got up early before the milkman, because you and I are going to take a little run to the seashore," said Mr. Longears. "Hurry down, Nurse Jane, we'll have breakfast and go to the ocean."

So Nurse Jane hurried and soon she and Uncle Wiggily were down on the ocean beach, with the green waves breaking into white, foamy crests, as they tumbled on the sand.

"It is very jolly here," said Uncle Wiggily, kicking around with his hind feet and sending a shower of sand down Nurse Jane's neck.

"Yes, it is lovely," she agreed, as she stood on her head to let the sand run back on the beach. "I only hope you don't get the rheumatism, and I hope the Fuzzy Fox doesn't chase us."

"I'll not get the rheumatism, because it is a warm, hot day," said Mr. Longears. "As for the Fox, I guess he is far, far away."

Leaving the automobile to go to sleep under the boardwalk, Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane walked down the ocean shore in the sand, stopping now and then to pick up pretty pebbles or shells and to watch the beach crowd gathering choice, tender bits of sea weed.

"Wait a minute, Uncle Wiggily!" called the muskrat lady after a while.

"What's the matter now?" Mr. Longears wanted to know.

"There's something in my shoe," answered Nurse Jane.

"Perhaps it's your paw," suggested Uncle Wiggily.

"Nonsense! Don't try to be funny!" laughed Nurse Jane. "There is sand in my shoe and I must stop and take it out. It hurts when I walk."

So the muskrat lady sat down and took off her shoe, emptying out the sand that had drifted in as she walked. Then she and Uncle Wiggily went on a little farther and pretty soon the muskrat lady said again:

"Oh, I must stop once more and empty the sand out of my shoe."

"All right!" answered Uncle Wiggily, who was very kind and patient-like, so he waited while the muskrat lady sat down and took off her shoes, emptying out the sand once more.

Then they went on again, but after a while, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily looked behind him and he saw the Fuzzy Fox trotting along after him on the sand.

She threw the sand in the eyes of the Fox.

"Hurry! Hurry, Nurse Jane!" called the rabbit gentleman. "The Fox is coming and if we don't want our ears nibbled we must run and get in the auto."

"All right! Run along! I'm coming," cried Nurse Jane.

So Uncle Wiggily hopped along and Nurse Jane followed after, like Jack and Jill, and behind them, farther back, trotted the Fox. All of a sudden Nurse Jane cried:

"Oh, I must stop and take some sand out of my shoe!"

"This is no time to stop and take sand out of a shoe!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "Hurry! Hop along!" But Nurse Jane couldn't hop with the sand in her shoe, so she sat down to take it off. And just as she did along came the Fox.

Uncle Wiggily ran back to save Nurse Jane from the Fox, but the brave muskrat lady did just the right thing. She took off her shoe, which was half full of sand. And she threw the sand right in the eyes of the Fox, crying:

"There, you may have that sand! I don't want it!"

And the sand in the eyes of the Fox made him cough and sneeze and give him the hiccoughs, so that he cried: "Wow! Wow! Wow" and away he ran, nibbling no ears that day.

"It's a good thing, Nurse Jane, that you had sand in your shoe," said the rabbit gentleman, as he helped Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy into the auto under the boardwalk. And I think so myself, don't you?"

And now if the elephant doesn't step on the stick of peppermint candy and turn it into a lollypop, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the ticklers.

Billy Whiskers

by Frances Trego Montgomery

"You are a nice kind of a policeman," jeered his comrades at the station. Can't find two big goats!"

"I guess you would find them," added one, "if he had butted you as that big goat did me! Just to get revenge on him, I have a notion to go back to the park and look for them myself."

"Go ahead! I wish you would! I lost trace of them in the park, but you are more than welcome to go and get on their trail from there."

As he hadn't much to do, the second policeman started out. Arriving at the park, he entered from the north and happened to inquire of the same gardner that the first policeman had interviewed earlier in the day.

When asked if he had seen two goats around there during the morning, the gardner told the same story as he had related to the other policeman.

"Would you mind telling me if those goats be valuable or not? For someone else has been askin' after them this mornin'."

"They have, they have? Who's been inquiring?"

'First comes along a policeman, and then a man so mad that he kept mutterin' to himself. And when I told him they had just run out of the north gate a few minutes before he came along, he pulled off his hat and started on a run toward the gate, and I saw him pull a pistol out of his pocket and heard him mumble to himself, 'I'll fix you, you old brute! I'll put a bullet through you at sight- Butt me, will you? And get me carried off to the police station? We'll see!" That was all I could catch, for he was off in the direction the goats had taken, running as fast as he could.

The policeman chuckled to himself, for he knew the man to whom the gardner referred was the fellow they had had at the police station, having arrested him because the old woman insisted he had turned his nose on her.

"I'll tell you why we want that goat," he said. "He is very fierce, and I am surprised that you are alive to tell the tale, for generally he butts or stamps anyone to death who touches him or goes near to him."

"Jimminy crickets! It is a good thing then that I missed him when I went after him with my rake!"

[Don't you wonder if the policeman found Billy and Nannie?]

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—A friend of mine took me to an all-day picnic and I furnished the lunch. I have always liked him, but he has some queer ways and is very jealous. While at the picnic he left me alone quite a bit, and at first I felt very unhappy and just like a wallflower. Then another boy saw me and stayed with me until lunch time. He did not have a girl there.

At lunch time I hunted up the boy who had invited me to the picnic and said it was time to eat. He was quiet all through lunch and hardly said a word to me. This made me very angry, and I didn't say much either. After lunch he went off again and left me alone. It wasn't long before the other boy came back, and we had a very good time together.

Later in the afternoon, when everyone started going home, I found the boy who had taken me wasn't anywhere to be seen. When I asked about him, some one said he had gone home. Then the second boy said he would drive me home in his car, and I was very glad to accept his invitation.

After getting home I got a telephone call from the first boy, and he said dreadful things to me about the way I had acted. He had not left the picnic, and when he found I had gone home with some one else, he was furious. He says he never wants to have anything more to do with me. I am perfectly willing he should not, but I do not feel I was really to blame.

Do you think it was my fault that things turned out as they did? DESERTED DOTTY.

The boy brought the trouble on himself by acting as he did. After taking you to the picnic it was most decidedly his place to stay with you and see that you had a good time. You are not in the least to blame. It was most fortunate that there was another young man present to look after you and save you from embarrassment.

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—I am 19 years old and a stenographer in a downtown office. Yesterday a young man telephoned and asked to talk to me. Before I was on the wire the other receiver was hung up, and so, when I answered the party had been cut off.

At first I thought he would telephone again, but he did not. I am not absolutely sure who called, but I think I know. Would you advise me to phone the young man I think it was and ask him if he was the one? S. T. W.

I would not advise you to telephone the young man you think called you. When you see him ask him if he called, but forget about the matter until you do see him. He probably realizes you were not to blame for the thing that happened.

Dear Mrs. Thomson:—Has one girl any right to telephone a boy who is going with another girl and ask him to come to see her? A certain girl telephoned my friend and said she wished he would come over to see her. He told me about it, but he didn't go. Don't you think it was a very bold thing for her to do?

SWEET SIXTEEN.

It certainly was bold for the girl to telephone a boy who was not interested in her and ask him to come to see her. It is not a matter to absorb much of your thought, however, since he did not go and did not care to go.

If one will drink one-third of a glass of milk above nutritional requirements every day he will gain nine pounds in a year and ninety pounds in ten years, says Prof. Graham Lusk of Cornell University Medical School.

Let Us All Chase Butterflies

I was walking through a large store, looking for an archery set or a pair of knitting needles or something—I had forgotten just what it was—but something distinctly masculine, when I saw a large number of gaily colored mosquito netting bags on the ends of sticks. There seemed to be thousands of them.

"Look here, varlet," I said to one of the most ladylike gentleman floorwalkers I had ever seen. "What are those things?"

"Oh, my dear sir," said he, daubing a bit of powder on his nose, "those are nothing less than butterfly nets."

"What are they good for?" I asked.

"To catch butterflies in—haw haw! It is the latest form of exercise, chasing butterflies. Blow me, else."

"Have you sold one yet?"

"Loads of them,"

"Do you mean to say that sane people are running around with those things trying to snare butterflies?"

"Running is right. The butterflies are agile little beggars, you know."

"Well," I said. "The women are always having some new health fad."

"Women? Oh, no, indeed. The women are not buying them. It's the men, you know."

"What kind of men?"

"All kinds. I sold one gentleman six nets yesterday. He is going to have a party. What color would you prefer, sir?"

Well, I thought it all over and decided to take a pink one. I took it out in the park later in the day to give it a trial trip. I got one hop toad and I almost got a sparrow, but no butterflies. Several other men were out exercising their butterfly nets, and one of them had knocked a policeman's cap off and another had snared a baby which was sitting in a cab. A third one told me he had been trying his butterfly net at home and that it was great for Croton bugs, which is an idea worth trying.

It is again reported that two or three sharks have been seen in the neighborhood of the well-known and justly famous Atlantic coast. This, of course, will be of little interest to the majority of the bathing beauties, who never go near the water, but to the few who swim it may mean something.

In order to handle this subpect we have looked up the manners and customs of sharks, and we find by consulting the best authorities, the following facts:

The shark is the most artful of the sea monsters. He has a delightful sense of humor. One of his favorite tricks is to show off at a bathing beach, scare all the summer resorters up into the foothills, and then turn out to be a floating plank or barrel.

The shark is harmless when swimming upright, or right side up. In order to bite he has to flop over on his back. When he is pursuing a swimmer and flops over on his back the trick is to dive under him and stay there.

Sharks do not often pursue their intended victims ashore, but there have been instances, related by honest fisherfolk, when these monster fish have not stopped at the coast, but have toured right along inland, have wrecked fishermen's cabins and chased fishermen up trees.

There was an instance somewhere on the Maine coast last year where a shark, maddened by hunger, flopped ashore and chased a mule nine miles into the country. The mule escaped by climbing a high elm tree, and the shark wrecked a general store nearby with his tail and devoured all the canned goods in said store, cans and all. The shark suffered terribly from indigestion on its way back to the coast, but managed to get away, and has not been seen since by the veracious narrator of the tale.

In shipping liquefied natural gas in steel tanks to localities where this gas is scarce, when released by the consumer it turns instantly into gas again.
